Death Toll Now 160 In Mexican Cyclone

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The defence ministry said Tuesday night the death toll from cyclone Tara had soared to 160 and more casualties were feared as floods swept the Pacific coast above Acapulco.

The village of Nuxoo was destroyed by torrential rains and floods, officials said. Much of a 100-mile coastal area remained blacked out and only air drops and parachutes were able to get in supplies and medicines. Helicopters were rushed to the disaster area northwest of the resort city of Acapulco. The city itself was not damaged.

The storm struck suddenly over the weekend, but reports were delayed by destroyed communications. Four days later, details were still lacking. Much of the damage and many of the deaths resulted from floods following in the wake of the storm that roared in from the Pacific. Damage was estimated at more than $1,000,000.

Doctor Let Cat Out Of Bag

Curiosity didn't kill this cat—but it almost shocked a local doctor out of 10 years' growth.

The cat in question—a large yellow tom—was missed Monday night from the Judith area home of two boys suffering from the flu, following the doctor's visit.

A search was just being organized when the doctor returned—cat in hand. He had stopped at the home of another patient, opened his medical bag, and out popped the cat.

Clause 'Betrayal' Says Art Teacher

By IAN STREET

The provincial government has inserted a "good behavior" clause in its order for reinstatement of a teacher fired last June by Greater Victoria school board on grounds that he failed to adhere to the curriculum.

The cabinet, sitting as council of public instruction, decreed that the dismissal be set aside and ordered the teacher in future to "adhere to the instructions" of the superintendent of local schools.

The reinstatement decision was based on the unanimous findings of a three-member board of reference, which heard the appeal of Colquhoun Junior High School industrial arts teacher Geoffrey C. D'Arcy, that the "reasons for dismissal in this instance were not sufficiently proved."

"SUBJUGATION" Mr. D'Arcy said yesterday the breadth of interpretation that it was possible to attach to the rider could "negate the whole proceedings" of his appeal.

He added: "No free and responsible citizen would accept such comprehensive subjugation" and the government proposed and for a teacher to do so would be to betray his society, his profession and his educational responsibilities."

"SUGGESTION DENIED" The teacher said he objected to the rider on two main grounds.

The first was the suggestion that as a teacher, "I must follow blind any and all instructions without regard for my own convictions or the educational methods involved or ignored."

Also, Mr. D'Arcy said, it contained a suggestion which he vigorously denied, that in the past he had not fully complied with the requests of the district superintendent of schools "in all matters of organization and sound educational practice."

"CAUSE HELPED" Mr. D'Arcy said he was "gratified" that the council of public instruction had confirmed the favorable decision of the board of reference.

He said the general cause of maintaining a healthy educational system had been helped considerably.

Spokesmen for Greater Victoria school board declined to comment on the government order until it is discussed by trustees at a public meeting Monday night.

Cabinet's Refuge In Nanaimo

The federal and provincial governments may be prepared to fight to the last kilowatt over the Columbia River but they are agreed on one thing—survival. This $2,000,000 nuclear-attack nerve-centre under construction at Nanaimo by the department of national defence will shelter top echelon of provincial government plus even the B.C. Area Command. When steel-reinforced concrete is completed in May or June the building will be completely underground. —(June Leahy photo.)

REDS REVAMP NAVY TO COUNTER U.S.

Nuclear Armada Worries Russia

LONDON (UPI)—Russia is urgently reorganizing its navy in the face of growing American nuclear dominance, the authoritative Jane's Fighting Ships reported Tuesday.

The new edition of the reference book was published coincident with a belief in naval circles that Russia is trying to develop a torpedo with a nuclear warhead in an effort to counter the American armada of 58 aircraft carriers.

In the event of war the carriers could loose hundreds of planes carrying nuclear weapons against Russian targets. One of the top Soviet priorities is how to deal with this threat to its lifelines.

SATURATION PLAN

Russia, with more submarines than the rest of the world combined, is expected in any future war to try to saturate the oceans with its under-sea craft. If it could perfect an atomic torpedo it would intensify the danger to Allied ships.

TWO 'KILLERS'

Jane's said the United States has two nuclear warheaded torpedoes designed as submarine killers—"Subroc" and "Astor." But until now there have not been any reports of Russian progress in this field.

Jane's said the major reorganization of the Russian navy is so thorough that Premier Khrushchev has had to reverse the opinion—freely offered the U.S. navy during his San Francisco visit—that the cruiser is obsolete.

CRUISERS CONVERTED

Russia is keeping all the cruisers it has built in recent years and some of them apparently are being converted into guided-missile ships. In this category of warships, as in every important one except submarines, the United States outnumbers Russia—47 cruisers to 25.

FIGURES REDUCED

The Soviet dependence on the submarine as its main weapon of sea warfare once again is the feature of the U.S. naval setup although Jane's said the "frightening figure" of 300 undersea craft under the Red flag has been reduced to about 430. The United States has 150 submarines.

CLAIM DOUBTED

Jane's doubts Russia's recent claim that it has more, faster and more heavily armed nuclear-powered submarines than the United States.

"The U.S. record in this field stands as high as present, and she has such a good start (23 nuclear powered submarines have been completed of which seven are Polaris missile armed) that it is doubtful if

West Can't Afford To Ignore Offer Of Olive Branch

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker last night said the West could not afford to "dismiss out of hand" any indication that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev wanted to reach a four-power agreement on Berlin.

Diefenbaker said the immediate task of Western statesmen was "to continue to explore the areas of possible four-power agreement and to make the necessary contacts with the Soviet Union."

'POSITION ASSURED'

The prime minister told the national conference of Canadian universities and colleges that Khrushchev emerged from the recent Communist party congress "with his internal position apparently assured."

"He may feel that he can afford to be a little more reasonable about the problem he has created over Berlin."

CANADA ACTIVE

"While the free nations have every reason to be wary of Mr. Khrushchev, at the same time they cannot afford to time they cannot afford to dismiss out of hand any indication that he recognizes the necessity and desirability of a four-power agreement on Berlin."

1066 and All That

LONDON (CP)—While Canadians bubble with plans for their 1967 centenary celebrations, Britons are brooding about the impending 900th anniversary of the Battle of Hastings.

No one doubts the battle's importance. Despite strong challenges from dates like 1579, 1885 and 1940, the year 1066 retains its unique connection with the greatest invasion England has ever known.

Every self-respecting Englishman is perfectly aware that the creative conscience of his race was forged in the battle heat at Hastings.

But there are problems—as Hastings borough council learned recently when it announced plans to mount a joint Anglo-French mock invasion to commemorate the Norman conquest.

Although 900 years of integration makes it difficult for many people to decide whether Hastings was a tragic defeat or a glorious victory, reaction to the council's plans reveals that Anglo-Saxon attitudes are bitter still and Norman blood can boil yet.

Battle ranks began to form in the letters column of The Daily Telegraph and the first arrow—a Saxon shaft—came from the bow of Rear-Admiral G. J. Crosswell.

He deplored the fact that an English defeat by a foreign "gangster" should be celebrated at all. Harold, the admiral asserted, was undoubtedly the "nobliest figure" of the fray.

Retaliation came from Norman sympathizer Mary Darby. She pointed out that "by the standards of the day the Bastard of Falsace had the strongest possible claim to the crown of England."

A Celt named O'Connor sided with the anti-Saxons by damning Harold as a murderer's son, a bigamist and a usurper who met his just reward by dying with a Norman arrow in his eye.

As the ranks began to close, an impartial bystander suddenly turned anger into confusion by announcing that William did not land at Hastings at all.

"It is indisputable that William landed at Pevensey, some 12 miles west of Hastings," wrote Trevor Norman. "Accordingly the worthy villagers of Pevensey are going ahead with plans to celebrate the landing in their own village."

At this point an historical society in a Sussex community called Battle, named after the inland village where the fierce met, decided it was time to soothe the belligerents with a "band of brothers" theme.

Chairman C. T. Chevallier—a suspected Norman—said the society fully appreciates all the graces and virtues of Harold but also believes that the Normans, although cruel, "imparted organization and cohesion to the previously discordant English."

"We of Pevensey, Hastings and Battle are surely right to commemorate this great if tragic happening. For in us, as demonstrably in all Englishmen everywhere, mingles the blood of conquerors and conquered alike."

Macapagal Moves Ahead

MANILA (UPI)—Latest reports from the Philippines elections show Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal moving into a commanding lead over President Carlos Garcia.

City Fires Capable Men To Qualify for Grants

City hall has to fire experienced employees and hire inexperienced men to qualify for provincial grants towards its winter works program.

"The man we know is suitable and capable has to be fired and put on unemployment insurance, and later social assistance, while we hire someone else who is already on social assistance," Aid Geoffrey Edgewood, chairman of city public works committee, said yesterday.

The committee asked City Manager C. C. Wyatt and engineer James Garnett to prepare a brief on the city's position. The committee will use the brief in representations to the provincial government.

Discussion centred around a circular from the B.C. government stating that provincial grants will only be paid in the case of newly-hired employees who had been receiving social welfare payments.

Previously, the city claimed and was given grants for regular employees who would normally have been dismissed in the winter.

Aid Pledged Korea

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy met Tuesday with South Korea's revolutionary leader, Gen. Chang Hee Park, and promised his nation "all possible" continued U.S. military and economic support.

Kennedy's renewal of the United States' pledge eight years ago to help defend South Korea included "the use of armed forces if there is a renewal of armed attack," a joint communique said.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

ABOMINABLE snowman? Sasquatch? Whatever you call it, some kind of huge, human-like creature does exist, says Ivan T. Sanderson in the November number of True magazine.

Several people have reported sighting such creatures, including Col. C. K. Howard-Bury, while trying to climb Mount Everest in 1921; and Professor V. K. Leontiev of the Soviet Union, a naturalist who saw a seven-foot hairy monster in the Pamirs from 50 paces away, and wrote a long report about it, illustrated with sketches.

Russians put a group of scientists to work on the Abominable Snowman mystery. A Soviet expert, Prof. B. F. Porshnev, examined a mummified hand in a monastery in Nepal, and said it belonged to a primitive Neanderthal subman.

A fresh "Snowman" footprint in Central Asia exactly matched a 50,000-year-old Neanderthal footprint found in a cave in Italy. Is the "Snowman" a primitive human being who has been skulking around in wild places since the ice age?

On July 3, 1884, a "half-man, half-beast" was captured near Yale, B.C. True magazine writer quotes at some length a story that appeared about Jacko (as his captors called him) in the Colonist of July 4, 1884.

They describe him as "something of the gorilla type standing about four feet seven inches in height, and weighing 127 pounds. . . . Long, black, strong hair; resembles a human being. . . . his entire body excepting his hands. . . . and feet is covered with glossy hair about one inch long."

"His forearm is much longer than a man's forearm, and he possesses extraordinary strength, as he will take hold of a stick and break it by bending or twisting it, which no man living could break in the same way."

He uttered a "half bark and half growl," at intervals. A train crew saw him lying near the track, stopped the train; cornered him on a ledge after a chase up the mountain, and knocked him cold with a rock.

Jacko was kept in captivity for some time; but no scientist looked at him, and nobody seems to know what happened to him in the end.

The late historian and newspaperman Bruce McKelvie was saving this story for an article that he proposed to write about the Sasquatch. Unfortunately, he never got around to writing it.

Victoria's city jail is overcrowded, says a man who served a short sentence. "Seventeen people in one cell," he said. "Just one toilet, out in the open. No newspapers allowed. No visitors except wives."

"When I was there, a man came in who was mentally disturbed, and they had to give him a cell on his own. It isn't the fault of the police that the jail is overcrowded. They need a new jail."

Why did Liberty magazine announce that it would carry a story about Victoria in its November number—but when November rolled around, there was no story?

Several people asked me, so I passed the question to Liberty's editor, Frank Rasky. His answer: The article was squeezed out by an unexpected shortage of space. It will run in a future issue.

Duncan Plaza shopping centre opens Friday, with about five of its 15 stores still vacant.

As far as I know, it is the only shopping centre in B.C.—perhaps in Canada—that stands on Indian land. Capital Holdings Ltd. lease the ground from Cowichan Indians.

Indians pay no taxes on their land, and no income tax as long as they live and work on a reserve.

However, non-Indians who lease Indian lands must pay taxes on both land and buildings. Owners of the shopping plaza—and owners of the supermarket that has been standing on Indian land for some time—must pay taxes to the city of Duncan.

Some of Cowichan Indian reserve, by special agreement, has been taken into the city. But Indians themselves still pay no land taxes. They look on tax immunity as a right granted to them by the white man, as part payment for the loss of most of their hunting and fishing grounds.

And as far as I know, any Cowichan Indians who go to work in the Duncan Plaza stores will remain free of income tax.

Veteran Trustees To Retire

Two veteran trustees announced yesterday they will not seek re-election to Greater Victoria school board this December.

Board chairman W. C. Gelling is retiring after eight years service on the board.

Also stepping down, after 10 years, is Trustee Kenneth Leeming, a former vice-chairman of the board and chairman of finance for four years.

Seeking re-election are two other board members, Mrs. A. B. Thompson, who is completing her second term, and David Logan, at the end of his first two-year term.

Mr. Gelling represents Oak Bay, Mr. Leeming and Mr. Logan are Victoria members and Mrs. Thompson represents Saanich.

So far there have been no new candidates.

First Year of Baby Is Most Dangerous

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: The pediatrician said my baby was fine but one day I let the coffee boil over and it extinguished the natural gas flame. Two days later, my baby died.

The autopsy said it was interstitial pneumonia. Now I'm afraid to have another baby.—Stupid Mother.

I wish this mother would forget forever she signed the letter "Stupid Mother," because she isn't stupid. She didn't do anything wrong. Her baby just wasn't destined to live.

The most dangerous time through which a baby must live is the first year. Nature provides babies with temporary immunity from a few diseases, but in general the infants have to run the risk of a lot of germs, survive them and therefore have some protection against them.

GERM, NOT GAS

The most frequent cause of the death of young babies is contact with a germ (not gas) that causes some form of pneumonia.

Such babies sometimes have

B.C. Power Suit

Five-Year Battle?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sources here quote a provincial Supreme Court official as saying B.C. Power Corporation's action in challenging legality of the B.C. Electric expropriation could easily extend over five years.

BCE asked the Supreme Court Monday to rule on the legality of the Power Development Act under which BCE was taken over without the right of challenge. BCE is seeking $225,000,000 instead of the $111,000,000 it received for all BCE common shares and seeks a fiat to sue the government for this amount.

NOT GRANTED

Premier Bennett has indicated the fiat may not be granted.

In its Supreme Court writ BCE now has taken a different tack and claims the provincial legislature had no power to expropriate the B.C. Electric.

LONG BATTLE

The manoeuvre promises to result in a long, complicated legal battle.

The government now has eight days in which to enter an appearance and 30 days more to get its statement of defence into court.

Once a Supreme Court judge decided that the legislation is either valid or invalid, either BCE or the government could file an appeal with the B.C. Court of Appeal. From there, theoretically, the case could go to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Kekkonen's announcement was made shortly after Karjalainen returned from Moscow. Parliament will remain in office until Feb. 17 and new elections will be held on Feb. 4 and 5. It was the fifth time a parliament was dissolved in 43 years of Finnish independence.

Italians In Peril

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI)—Congolese troops who captured 13 Italian United Nations fliers at Kindu airport in Kivu province have threatened to shoot their hostages, reports reaching Leopoldville said yesterday.

The Italians were captured Saturday when Congolese troops thinking they were white mercenaries fired on them as they were eating at the UN mess. One of the Italians was reported badly wounded by one of the 20 shots fired, an informed source said.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (UPI)—A special United Nations investigating commission said yesterday that "in all probability" former Congolese premier Patrice Lumumba was murdered by Belgian mercenaries in the presence of Katanga President Moise Tshombe.

The four-nation commission said the central Congolese government headed by President Joseph Kasavubu should share responsibility for the deaths of Lumumba and two aides earlier this year because it handed them over to their enemies.

Of the actual murder the report said:

"A great deal of suspicion is cast on a certain Colonel Buyghe, a Belgian mercenary, as being the actual perpetrator of Mr. Lumumba's murder, which was committed in accordance with a pre-arranged plan, and that a certain Captain Gat, also a Belgian mercenary, was at all times an accessory to the crime."

The report said the commission "accepts as substantially true the evidence that the prisoners were killed on Jan. 17 after their arrival in a villa not far from Elisabethville and in all probability in the presence of high officials of the government of Katanga province" including Tshombe.

Nuclear War So Dangerous It Could Be Safe—Truman

KANSAS CITY — Former President Harry Truman told a group of college presidents he isn't worried about the outbreak of a nuclear war.

He explained: "Out by my home town of Independence there's a railroad underpass. When you drive up to it, you have to make a right-angle turn to get into the underpass and on the other side you have to make a right-angle turn to get out of it."

"I asked an engineer one day what could be done about it, and he told me, 'that thing's so damned dangerous, it's safe.'"

"And that's just the way it is with a nuclear war, it's so dangerous it's safe."

"Liquor-Control Plebiscites Act" NOTICE TO ELECTORS In Licensing Area No. 90 The Corporation of the District of Saanich:

A plebiscite will be held on December 7th, 1961, in the above-named Licensing Area, on the question of the issuance of public house licences:

Notice is hereby given that the list of voters for this plebiscite will close at 5 p.m. on Wednesday, November, 22nd, 1961, after which date no names can be added to the list.

To be eligible to vote, you must be a resident in the Municipality of Saanich, and be registered as a Provincial voter in one of the polling divisions included in that part of the Saanich Electoral District.

Qualifications for registration are, briefly:
19 years of age or older
Resident of Canada for 12 months
Resident of British Columbia for 6 months
Canadian citizen or British subject.

Note that this plebiscite has no connection with the Municipal vote being held at the same time; you must be registered as a Provincial voter in order to vote. Persons who were registered, and who voted at the Provincial election in September 1960, will still be registered unless they have changed their addresses or otherwise lost their qualifications.

If you are eligible, and your name is not on the voters' list, REGISTER NOW at either of the following locations.

910 Gordon Street, Victoria, between 8.30 a.m. and 5 p.m. including Saturday, November 18th.

Women's Institute Hall, Royal Oak, between 8.30 a.m. and 6 p.m., including Saturday, November 18th.

Hard to Match

MAYOR Percy Scurrah's decision to step down after this, his third two-year term of office as chief magistrate of Victoria is cause for regret; the community will lose an able and energetic civic leader, and his record will be difficult for a successor to match.

The mayor has accomplished, however, almost all he set out to try to do six busy years ago, and is entitled to consider his job done and done well. Only one or two of his original goals (such as persuading the provincial government to pay the capital a grant in lieu of taxes) have proved unattainable, and he has seen and reached new goals since he started out.

He set himself a big task, he has done it splendidly, and now, forgoing the further distinction of being mayor in Victoria's centennial year, he is once more demonstrating his unselfish interest in the city's progress by opening the door to "a new man, with different ideas."

Victoria will do extraordinarily well if it elects as its next mayor a new man with fresh ideas, but with the same principles, the same quality of leadership, the same dignity, the same energy and the same devotion to the city's interests as Mayor Scurrah.

Biting the Hand . . .

IF YOU GIVE gifts to a person regularly over a long period the recipient tends to take them for granted. Any attempt to stop the largesse creates offence. The beneficiary is apt to be annoyed.

Recipient nations behave in this way too, even more so. The postwar foreign aid programs have come to be regarded as their right by countries on the receiving end, as a bolster to the political ambitions of those in power.

It has grown to be a form of blackmail, also, in the context of the cold war struggle. Thus countries like Ghana and British Guiana, for instance, openly demand financial aid from the West under threat to turn to Soviet Russia for assistance if the demands are not met.

And because the West is anxious to align the so-called uncommitted nations to its cause it becomes vulnerable to such pressures.

The latest instance is that of Yugoslavia, and there is supreme irony in its money-seeking. It is not an uncommitted nation, but a Communist one. More than that it espouses the Soviet Union in its current manoeuvres over Berlin.

By the effrontery common to Communist practice this does not deter Premier Tito from biting the hand he would have fed him.

The West has looked with indulgence on the Tito regime because the latter does not always see eye to eye with Moscow. There has been the belief that while Yugoslavia is Communist it would develop outside the Soviet orbit and could be weaned to more amicable relations with the West.

When the chips are down, however, the Communist color is the same everywhere.

Thus in practically the same breath Premier Tito tells the West he sides with the Soviet Union on the German problem—the nub of the present grave threat to world peace—and condemns the U.S.A. for any move to limit or end American military and economic aid to his country.

Perhaps the time has come for the whole foreign aid programs of the West to be reconsidered. It seems folly to help promote and sustain ruling groups which use such aid against the interests of those who give the aid.

The More the Better

THE MUNICIPAL elections this year should have unusual appeal for the voters. When the majority and reevehip posts are at stake there is always additional interest, culminating as a rule in a larger ballot cast.

Excepting only in Esquimalt, where Reeve Wurtele seems to go on for ever, and acceptably, competition will be keen for the chief administrative positions. Nor is there lack of variety to whet the excitement.

The entry of Mr. R. B. Wilson, prominent local businessman, into the bid for mayor, together with that of former alderman Mr. Elmer McEwen, and the prospects of two or three other candidates, has sparked the city hall contest to a degree not equalled for many years.

Saanich likewise will see spirited bidding for its principal office, with no fewer than three competent aspirants hoping to be elected reeve. More surprising perhaps is the case in Oak Bay, where elections invariably are so quiet as to pass almost unnoticed. This time the reevehip will be contested and as in Saanich three able candidates will be aiming for that distinction.

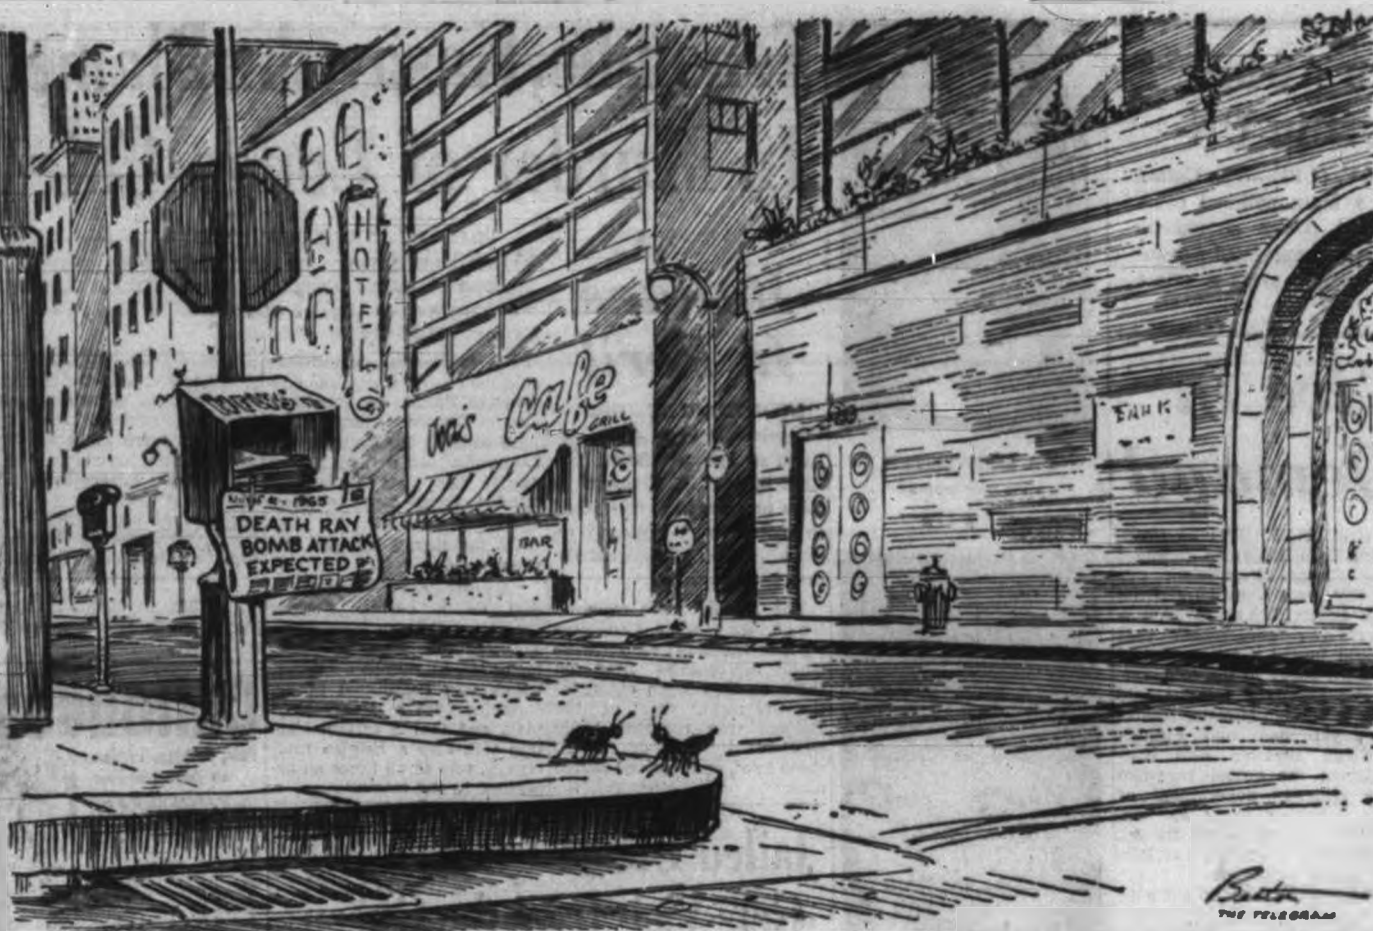

This is all to the good. The more candidates for office the healthier the interest in government at the local level.

Setting an Example

SAANICH with its growing pains has had difficulty in recent years in providing itself with services comparable with those in more compact and fully developed municipalities. It stands out the more conspicuously as a feather in the Saanich cap, therefore, that the municipality has led the way in setting up an emergency call system which will permit its residents to use one telephone number for any sort of crisis.

By telephoning the fire department emergency number, residents of Saanich can avoid delay in locating the appropriate authority. Besides that, they have the advantage of having only one telephone number to remember or, as the case may often be, to search for in an upset state in the directory.

The idea of having one emergency number for the whole south end of Vancouver Island or for Greater Victoria apparently has not been officially discarded, but only left on a shelf gathering the dust of intermunicipal forgetfulness. The Saanich example should be enough to remind the whole of the area of the worth of such a plan; at any rate the residents of the other Greater Victoria municipalities may well feel envious.

IT WAS VERY NICE OF THEM TO LEAVE EVERYTHING NEAT AND TIDY FOR THE NEXT OCCUPANTS.

Thinking Aloud

By TOM TAYLOR

NERVES and pain are allies—the pain runs along the nerves, doesn't it?—so there will be no harm in amusing ourselves with them for a few moments.

Sometimes of course it's suggested that "nerves" result from what one eats. More often it seems they originate in plain undisciplined temper, but it's a fact that could be to blame.

For instance if porridge can be bought in tins, as I believe it can, there's excuse aplenty for nerves. Anyone so disgracing himself deserves an attack, and a touch of pain into the bargain.

Pain comes in different ways, as well we know. The sensation that comes over you as you listen to a bore, creeping up as it does to the back of your neck, is not quite the same as a blow on the head.

Incidentally, it might be noted that when such a blow is brutal, and a charge of murder follows, the pained cries that arise when a murderer is sentenced is astonishing.

For all the world as though the victim has done his small part in an injustice by dying.

Pain is always with us in some form or another. In the physical sense, the one most familiar to us, it takes varying degrees of hardness to withstand.

Yet it can be refreshing, salutary anyway, when administered in right doses at the right time. Who knows but had Hitler been given a taste of the personal torment he visited upon others it might have worked wonders.

There is a lot to be said for turning the other cheek but something, too, for the law of Moses.

A more wholesome pain is associated with the woodshed. Most of us never were sent to the woodshed, actually, but received our punishment on the spot, but the connotation is the same. We look back on these youthful lapses through rosy spectacles, true enough, and through the passage of time can afford to stroke a certain part of our anatomy with whimsical relish.

Yet the broom handle, or its equivalent, probably did us good.

A writer once pointed out that apparently the Creator equipped his creatures with self-educational senses. One of them was the capacity for feeling the physical pain they inflicted on others.

Tasting one's own medicine, as it were, a sobering and disciplinary experience.

Being a schoolmaster he was thinking of unruly pupils. A child, he said, cannot be expected to imagine intellectual misery and pain he has the power to inflict on others. But half-down of the best can have a fine awakening sense on his mind and conscience.

This sponsor of the rod is now retired, no doubt with regret that teachers are expected to dispense with this saving grace.

For the naughty boy, of course, the development is wonderful and painless, ensuring that he doesn't grow up with one of those hidden frustrations we hear so much about.

After all, I don't suppose it matters so much about the teacher's frustrations; he can indulge himself in an attack of "nerves" and he won't need a can of imported porridge to bring it on, either.

Washington Calling

THE man in the Kennedy administration who most nearly resembles Hercules in the range of the labors he has taken on is the lean, professional-looking secretary of defence, Robert S. McNamara.

As though his burden were not heavy enough, he has added another chore.

That is to attempt to re-write the pamphlet on fallout shelters that originally was to have gone to 60,000,000 American homes. McNamara took this on as a personal responsibility after a snafu that, even by Pentagon standards, was a marvel of confusion and uncertainty.

The initial attempt was a Madison Avenue-type job that on the first page carried a picture of heroic pioneers resisting the Indians in a stockade, dated about 1778. As one critic remarked in the innumerable conferences over the pamphlet, that would be a picture of the American Republic from the Republic National Committee. The committee's quipsters would only have to add a few notes to the effect that it is about where the civil defence program stands.

It is, above all, realism—honesty—that McNamara is insisting on in what was meant to be a simple lesson on ways and means that might contribute to survival. There can be no illusion that shelter, as currently conceived, can be of any avail in the area of the blast and perhaps also in the much greater area of the fire storms touched off by the blast. But the protection of 200 pounds of earth, or newspapers, or books, or whatever, over one's head can, in the McNamara view, make a difference where fallout is concerned.

Most important of all is the fact that McNamara does not subscribe to the theory floated by some Pentagon sources that in a pre-emptive first strike by the Soviets American cities would not be targets. This all-too-true theory is based on the new evaluation rating the number of intercontinental ballistic missiles available to the Soviets drastically downward—perhaps as few as 75 or 80. These ICBMs would have to be concentrated on America's missile sites and there would be none to spare for the cities.

McNamara believes that, on the contrary, if the Soviets were to be driven by what ever irrationality—desperation, rage, frustration—to a first strike they would concentrate on the cities. Their objective would be to destroy the core of American society which is in the large population centres.

Nor is McNamara under any illusions about the effects of such an attack. He has told associates that recovery for the United States would be a matter of centuries rather than years if indeed "recovery," in the sense of restoring the kind of society existing today, is conceivable. He says this at the same time that he leaves no doubt that under certain circumstances the United States would go to nuclear war.

In the broad, the almost incredible, dimensions of his job the fallout pamphlet is for McNamara a relatively minor task. But it is a subject the public is greatly concerned about and he is determined to dispel as much of the doubt and uncertainty as possible. There is still a possibility, however, that the project will be shelved.

By MARQUIS CHILDS

More than any predecessor, McNamara in his first 10 months in the office has faced up to the realities of the top-heavy defence structure and the effort to assert civilian control over it. He started out with the determination to try to keep politics out, bluntly telling the president he would not accept Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., as secretary of the navy, thereby stepping on important and sensitive toes. While he has not entirely succeeded in barring politics, he is making a valiant try.

In preparations for the forthcoming defence budget he told the service secretaries and the generals and the admirals that the dollar sign would not be the criterion. But he is himself now engaged in cutting out what he considers the waste in the advance estimates. For example, he is eliminating all new "administrative aircraft" — in Pentagon jargon "administralive aircraft" are the private planes reserved for use of high-ranking officers with the rule being the more stars the bigger the plane.

To those, such as Senator Henry M. Jackson, pressing him to spend the additional $780,000,000 Congress appropriated for manned bombers and advanced-type planes, McNamara is saying that defence must not become a means of subsidizing an industry and keeping workers on a payroll. If adjustments are essential in the aircraft industry in line with the missile age, then those adjustments must be made on a broad scale including retraining of workers and relocation of plants. This is not popular talk, since in the past it has been found easier to hand out new contracts, even for projects obsolete almost before they were begun rather than say no. But this is the hard path the secretary intends to try to follow.

For Argentina

A Diet Ahead

By HAROLD Y. JONES,
from Buenos Aires

The latest joke here is that Argentines will soon have to go on a diet of "Frondical."

It's a wry way of saying President Arturo Frondizi's austerity program will probably become more austere. Frondizi's recovery program, started in 1959, is behind schedule and may have to be extended until Argentina's trade balance improves.

The program leans heavily on the effects of foreign private enterprise. (U.S. capital is developing the country's oil and auto industries, for instance.) It has the blessing of the International Monetary Fund and U.S. economic officials.

The idea has been to limit imports to help new local industry. Import taxes on many items are high, to protect products now made in Argentina.

Despite this, Argentina finds itself spending more and more for imports. And revenue from its two main money-makers—meat and grain—is falling.

Economic Minister Roberto Alemann just got back from Vienna where he met with officials of the IMF. The result was a renewal of a $100 million "stand-by" credit. This will help keep Argentina from going broke this year. The trouble is that Argentine export revenue depends, frequently, not on what Argentina does but what other countries do, how they plan their imports.

If one country in Europe, say, bans Argentine beef, Argentina is stuck. There are no handy alternative markets. Another thing Argentines worry about is the European Common Market. This, they figure, could result in high tariffs against Latin meats and grain.

The United States would make an alternate market for Argentine beef, and cattlemen and economic officials have been trying for years to get Americans to buy it. The U.S. insists that its ban on Argentine beef is for sanitary not economic reasons. Argentine herds are frequently infected with hoof and mouth disease, and the U.S. prohibits any but cooked and canned meat from Argentina.

U.S. and Argentine officials have been talking about the problem recently, and Frondizi undoubtedly brought it up when he met with President Kennedy in Washington.

The U.S. has promised to study the request. It named Dr. George J. Harter to study Argentine herds to check on progress of a stronger-than-usual vaccination program. This doesn't mean the U.S. will drop its barriers, however.

The situation with the European markets is something else. Germany and Italy are becoming self-sufficient in meat. They have imposed tariffs on outside meat to help home markets.

Last month, Britain decided to favor imports of Danish butter over Argentine butter. Argentine economic officials have been racing across the ocean in record numbers lately in efforts to get European nations to consider what effect their actions will have on Argentina and other Latin American nations which depend on one or two crops.

Britain has tried to reassure Argentina, saying there is no need for excessive apprehension.

Argentine Secretary of Commerce Garita Oliver, however, is frustrated.

"My country is fully aware that the fundamental basis for development lies in a country's own efforts and spirit of sacrifice," he said. "But the experience in recent years shows that the most tenacious efforts of a country are unavailing if exports outlets are blocked."

Fun, Fact and Fiction

At an officers' club in London the members were bidding farewell to a man leaving for the Far East.

"It gets very hot out there at times," remarked one member. "Aren't you afraid the climate might disagree with your wife?"

The man looked at him reproachfully. "It wouldn't dare," he said.

There are about 21,000 blind persons in Canada, the great majority of whom have lost their sight in adult life; there are about 1,000 pupils, between the ages of seven and 20, in the country's six schools for the blind.

An American tourist in Paris was attempting to use some of his high school French to order his dinner.

"Garson," he said after studying the menu, "je desire royal consommé, et une piece of pang, and, er..."

"I am sorry, sir," said the waiter, "but I don't speak French."

"Well, then," answered the tourist, "for heaven's sake send me someone who can."

Canadians spent the record total of $1,289,973,000 on new passenger cars in 1960.

Arena Improved

I have had occasion to visit our Memorial Arena once or twice recently as I know many others have done, and I would like to take this opportunity to state how impressed I am, and how pleased I feel our citizens must be, with the great improvements that have been effected within the building.

There seems to be a fine new spirit with the staff in the pleasant, attentive, and interested service they render. The interiors of the building have been cleaned, painted and brightened up in attractive colors. This work having all been done, as I understand it, by the arena's own staff.

I would like to congratulate the new management and commission for a good job, well done.

The recent arena trouble was a most unpleasant and unhappy affair (certainly so for me). However, I feel this has been justified with a greatly improved arena.

The one sad and most unfortunate situation remaining, is the basic justice which I feel was withheld from certain members of the staff, particularly the assistant manager, and the hardships being suffered by Mr. Ken Noakes and his family.

It is my sincere hope the condition for this will some day be corrected and right will prevail.

Problems Remain

The leaders of the CCF-New Democratic Party must have an unshakable faith in the workers' willingness to support capitalism. A press report quotes T. C. Douglas as saying that "75 per cent of the program we proposed back in 1933 has been introduced."

This political shepherd then tells a meeting of the Women's Canadian Club that 2,000,000 of Canada's 6,000,000 income earners are not paid enough to qualify for income tax.

One would think that such a failure of reforms would discourage people into trying something new.

For instance, after 50 years of possibly more reforms than any other country, the British masses are still faced with the problems of insecurity, threat of unemployment and fear of war.

When will the wage-working majority finally discover that you can't bail the ocean out with a bucket, that capitalism can create more problems in 48 hours than the Douglasses and the Coldwells can alleviate in a lifetime?

The means whereby we must all live can be placed into the hands of all society for the sole benefit of society, as soon as the world's workers want it so.

Refusal to do this means many more sad days ahead.

Concerts Appreciated

The excellent report in the Colonist of the symphony concerts given earlier this week at the Royal Theatre with capacity audiences at both concerts, should give the president and board of directors of the Victoria Symphony Society great satisfaction. Their decision, made before the season opened, to have local talent in their concerts has also won the approval of musical citizens residing in Victoria and the surrounding community.

City Hall

As a taxpayer I think we taxpayers should make sure we are going to have a city hall to be proud of.

The B.C. Hydro building is a nice building but it is not my idea of a city hall and if extra money must be spent to make it adequate within why not consider other proposals such as Victoria MLA J. Donald Smith's suggestion of closing off Broad and Cormorant Streets and utilizing that section for a new city hall, police station, auditorium, etc. Does seem logical!

We are asked to vote yes or no on this or that but do we have a chance to choose from the plans which we shall build?

I think the new Court House has ruined Cathedral Hill. There it is built on the finest site in Victoria with an unsurpassed view of Juan de Fuca Strait, the Olympic Range and the Sooke Hills where the sun sets, an ugly monstrosity of brick and a few long, narrow windows. Something lovely should have been built there for the public to enjoy.

World Food Bank 'Opposed by Many'

OTTAWA (CP)—Agriculture Minister Hamilton yesterday reported "decided opposition" by many nations to Canada's proposal for a world food bank designed to feed hungry peoples abroad.

He told reporters the opponents include 40 to 50 developing nations who are "terrified" of the plan, fearing that handouts from the food bank would wreck their own hopes for internal economic gains based almost solely on agriculture.

Other countries contend the bank would simply involve payments by some nations to help Canada and the U.S. get rid of surpluses, Mr. Hamilton said.

Still others were afraid the bank would harm commercial markets.

The minister, who returned Monday from the Food and Agriculture Organization conference in Rome where the bank proposal is under study, did not forecast when the full role might be played by such a bank, which would get nearly $10,000,000,000 yearly.

'Increase Trade With Aid'

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (UPI)—Canadian Public Works Minister David Walker yesterday announced Canada would continue to contribute $50,000,000 a year to the Colombo Plan.

Walker told the Colombo Plan consultative conference the 21 member nations should seek increased trade between themselves.

"Aid is largely a one-way street," he said, "but trade is two ways." This trade of undeveloped countries should grow to our mutual benefit.

Aid Business, Ottawa Told

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Bonner said last night the federal government should "bestir itself" and give the private sector of the economy some assistance.

Addressing a dinner sponsored by the Young Socialists Association of Metropolitan Toronto, Mr. Bonner stated "It is not enough to tell private business to 'sell harder'."

There are, he stated, problems of tariffs, trade relations and market assessments that require government action.

Canadian producers had shown they are able to make competitive bids on American defence contracts and he knew of instances where Canadian bids were second lowest among more than a dozen bidders.

"There is a feeling," he said,

"that American bidders have a 'look-in' not available to Canadians," and he urged that the government make diplomatic representations to the United States, "in the same way that Americans do when their interests are affected by Canadian action."

Mr. Bonner said the issue in the next election is not one of free enterprise versus socialism, but one between "action and inaction, decision and indecision, policy and no policy."

Early Death Seen For Lack of Drug

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Montreal heart specialist said yesterday the hearts of many children who have suffered rheumatic fever may be damaged—perhaps to the extent that they will die at a comparatively early age—because of failure to administer an easily-obtained drug.

Dr. Paul David, director of the Institute of Cardiology, Montreal, and chairman of the National Heart Foundation's medical committee, said the drug is penicillin.

Couple Admits Robbing Man At Knife-Point

A young Victoria couple yesterday pleaded guilty in Saanich police court to robbing a visitor of his car and $1 at knife-point early last Thursday.

Ernest Richard Falconer and Laurie Falconer, both in their early 30s and living at 723 Yates, were remanded to Nov. 21 by Magistrate William Ostler for probation reports and sentence.

VIOLENCE DENIED
The two were charged jointly with robbery with violence. While Falconer denied there was any violence, he persisted in his plea of "guilty."

Detective George Walton recounted the victim's version of the robbery to the court.

ASKED FOR LIFT
Detective Walton said Brian Whitworth, a salesman from Vancouver, was driving along Broad at about 12:30 a.m. Thursday when he saw a woman on the sidewalk apparently having trouble with her male companion. He stopped and asked if he could help.

She said her companion was drunk but harmless, and asked for a lift. Once in the car (the woman in front, the man in the back seat) she asked Whitworth if they could be taken somewhere to eat.

BECAME SUSPICIOUS
Whitworth drove out the Gorge and at a restaurant went in and got hamburgers. Driving on from there, Whitworth told police he became suspicious and slipped his wallet from his coat and hid it beneath the front seat.

Beyond Tillicum, in Saanich, the woman asked Whitworth to stop.

As he did there was a movement behind him, an arm came around his throat and something was pressed against his neck.

REMOVED DOLLAR
He was told it was a knife and it could be used if he moved.

The woman went through his pockets, removing a dollar bill from his right trouser pocket and asking why he had no more money. He told her he was a salesman who drew expenses daily.

The three changed positions the man driving and the woman in the back, holding the knife—which Det. Walton said never was recovered.

SPED AWAY
At a dark spot on Admirals Road the car stopped and Whitworth was let out while the others sped away.

Later the car was found on Blanshard near View in Victoria, and the accused couple was held by city police at 723 Yates and turned over to Saanich police.

'BEHIND IN RENT'
Det. Walton said the woman told police the two had cooked up the plan together. They were two weeks behind in their rent, she said.

Parker's Victory Upheld on Appeal

NANAIMO—Motorist Cliff Williams, who Aug. 23 upset a parking charge on a technically, had further success Tuesday when the city lost its appeal.

Magistrate Lionel Beaver-Potts had agreed with Williams that the words "penalty" and "nickel," used on the parking meter, are not legal terms in Canada. Before County Court Judge Arnold Hanna, Williams' lawyer Ralph Hutchinson argued Tuesday there was no proof that the meter would operate and a city bylaw specifies meters "shall be capable of operating."

The judge agreed.

Doll-Making Contest Won by Beverley, 12

Beverly Davies, 12, of 3365 Painter, has been judged winner of the second annual competition for doll-making run by the Hudson's Bay Company in co-operation with the Unitarian Service Committee of Canada.

The competition emphasizes the annual USC campaign for funds and clothing to be sent to needy families in depressed areas abroad. All dolls entered by children of Greater Victoria will be flown to children in Hong Kong in time for Christmas.

Winner of second place was Sharon Westcott, 14, of 1040 Fairfield, and third was Joan Hodgkinson, 13, of 3840 Cumberland.

Competitors bought doll faces and a white sock kit, and created costumes entirely from scraps of material found at home. All are now on display at the store.

Dr. Lotta Hiltzmanova, USC executive director, will speak at a public meeting Monday at 8 p.m. in St. Andrew's Kirk Hall, Courtney Street, in support of the campaign.

Fire Flares Up

'Fed Up' Bus Driver Stole Road Grader

UCLUELET—"Fed up" bus driver Noel Hamlin had been fined $25 in police court here for stealing a B.C. public works department grader to level a road that had been "driving me and my passengers crazy."

Hamlin, 33, has been driving his 33-seat bus from Port Alberni to Tofino and return three times weekly since September. He said the surface of the Long Beach road seemed to be getting worse every trip. So, late on recent night, as he was driving back alone to Tofino, he saw the 14-ton grader and worked over a three-mile stretch of the road "until I thought it was level," then left the grader in a ditch.

When Magistrate Joseph Webb said he had no right to do the job on his own, Hamlin said passengers were always complaining and "I thought I'd save the government a little work."

Officials in Victoria said Hamlin didn't level the road but actually made it worse.

Lone Rock, Sask., where an initial blast earlier in the day killed Carl Ganske, 28, of Drayton Valley, Alta.

Ken Spiker, 24, also of Drayton Valley, suffered facial burns in the initial explosion. He was reported in satisfactory condition yesterday in hospital at Lloydminster.

The two subsequent explosions occurred when a valve ruptured and spread burning oil around the refinery's tank area. The blaze was again out of control for a brief period.

Flames from the original explosion, eating at an oil storage tank which contained 1,000 barrels of crude oil, had been brought under control yesterday afternoon by firemen.

Public hearings necessary before a water licence can be granted for development of the Columbia River power project will conclude here Nov. 21.

The hearings, before water rights comptroller A. F. Paget, will be mainly concerned with technical issues raised at earlier hearings in the Kootenays.

Calm Woman Calms Fire

An overheated stove which touched off a chimney fire at 13 Cooper Road, Songhees Indian Reserve, held no fears for Mrs. Sophie Misheal.

She calmly reached across the room, grabbed a large package of salt and poured it on the fire, slowing the blaze. Firemen said it was the best move Mrs. Misheal could have made.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

It takes a patient person to hunt the Canada goose in the Tofino area... and this season even patience hasn't been too rewarding.

The hunters who are willing to get out at the crack of dawn and wait it out until dusk, taking in both the evening and morning flights, are bagging a few geese. Game biologists, both federal and provincial, co-operated over the weekend in a study of the Tofino goose population—a study which is now in its third year.

They checked 69 hunters, who had bagged 28 geese. Nobody got a limit.

Biologists counted only 4,300 of the Lesser Canadas, compared to 12,000 at the same time last year. The lack of geese was pretty obvious to us. We were at Tofino at the same time last year and saw numerous flights up and down Browning Passage, over Madecan Point and in Grice Bay. This year we never saw a flock in that area, and it wasn't until we went looking for them up Lemmens Inlet on Monday that we saw any geese at all.

Some of the hunters were lucky. Dave Wigmore and Lorne Ebell of Victoria bagged a half dozen, but it took just about as many days of hunting to get them. Vancouver Island Helicopters manager Bob Taylor, hunting with Hugh Lyons, bagged some of the Canadas, but to make their trip worthwhile they went after ducks with fair success.

Chief provincial game biologist Jimmy Hatter, who usually stays the geese at Tofino with limit bags, shot some but was finding it tough going. Charlie Guiguet was in much the same boat. Victorians Jack Gatehouse, Dick Bayne, Gerry Lauder and Dr. W. A. Dennis turned to trap shooting on Long Beach after bagging only one goose.

Hunters blame the scarcity of geese on speedboats who have been reported chasing up and down the waters, frightening the geese—in some cases speeding up under a flock and hanging away at them from a moving boat, and in other cases just stirring up the flocks on the chance of herding some birds over their partners' blinds or decoys. This practice has now been pretty well stopped and prosecutions are pending on the west coast after RCMP marine patrol went into action.

Certainly the geese have been spooked so much that once they take off the water they fly higher and higher, hundreds of yards out of range. They may move on down south much quicker if they are spooked too much.

But biologists don't believe there are fewer geese this year. They believe they are just coming in dribbles, a few at a time spread over a longer period. These birds, except for less than 800 wintering population, come from Copper River and Alaska points on their way south. Most are the dark Lesser Canadas and cacklers, with a few big Canadas.

What was needed to bring in big flocks was an almost coast-wide cold snap to bring them down from the north. This year's fine weather has resulted in a few taking off and leisurely making their way south.

Usually the big buildup of geese at Tofino is about the Nov. 11 weekend, but because they have been coming through in fewer numbers over a longer period, many of the birds have already passed over Tofino and no big buildup is expected now, although hunting should continue to be fair right into early January. There are good numbers of mallards, widgeon, pintail and scaup ducks in the Tofino area waters.

Canadian Wildlife Service biologist Bob West believes there will never be need to worry about over harvesting of the geese population in the Tofino waters, because there is too much open water for a really big kill. But such practices as chasing the geese with speedboats may make the big honkers tend to miss the area, or not stay so long, he adds.

There are plenty of places for the birds to escape. Tofino area is just riddled with scores of inlets, bays, mud flats and grassy areas and some of the best hunting comes when hunting pressure is the greatest and hunters, popping at the birds from blinds all over the area, just keep the birds flying about from one place to another.

Some hunters with the urge to kill for killing sake are upsetting the residents of the Tofino area by popping away at the dainty flocks of sand pipers which grace the shores of Long Beach and which incidentally are protected. Other hunters have been reported just hanging away at ducks—any old ducks, edible or otherwise—which is a rather silly practice, although not too harmful from a conservation point of view.

Unanimous All-Star Choices

Two 'Castoffs' East's Best

TORONTO (CP)—Halfback Don Clark, a spectacular runner who was rejected by two clubs, and the brilliant Bernie Faloney, a quarterback considered expendable a year ago, Tuesday joined Canadian centre Norm Stoneburgh as the leaders in the voting for the 1961 Eastern Football Conference all-star teams.

Clark, a slashing, fleet-footed ground gainer with Montreal Alouettes, was the only unanimous choice of the voters who picked the mythical all-star offensive and defensive teams for The Canadian Press.

Faloney, the five-year veteran Hamilton Tiger-Cats tried to pawn off for quarterback Sam Etcheberry in a trade that didn't sell, and Stoneburgh, a standout with Toronto Argonauts for eight seasons, were selected by all but one of the voters.

West May See Eastern Finals

TORONTO (CP)—The CBC said Tuesday it has received an offer from the television committee of the Eastern Football Conference, proposing duplicate coverage by the CBC and the privately-owned Canadian television network of "decisive, final" playoff games.

A CBC spokesman said Gaudaur telephoned his proposal Monday to H. G. Walker, CBC general manager, and was told he will receive a reply by Thursday.

Games affected by the proposal are the second game of the Eastern Canada finals between Toronto Argonauts and Hamilton Tiger-Cats in Hamilton Nov. 25 and the second and possibly third games of the best-of-three western finals at Winnipeg Nov. 22 and 25.

CAN'T AGREE

The CBC holds television rights to western playoff games and CTV holds eastern playoff rights. Up to the present, the two organizations have been unable to agree on a basis for exchanging coverage in each other's territory.

The CBC spokesman said Gaudaur's new offer would allow duplicate coverage by CBC and CTV stations in competitive eastern cities.

Last Saturday the CBC rejected a CTV exchange proposal that would have permitted the CBC to broadcast eastern playoff games to the west and carry western games on eastern CBC stations outside CTV areas.

The chairman and president of CFTO-TV, John Bassett, said Tuesday he had suggested duplicate coverage of the playoffs so that football fans would be able to see the games on television. CFTO-TV owns the television rights to Eastern Conference games.

"As the CBC would not accept an exchange of western playoffs for eastern playoff games," Bassett said, "I told Mr. Gaudaur that I was prepared to let the CBC bring western games into the east on a duplicate coverage basis."

"The CBC in my opinion have taken a dog-in-the-manger attitude, but the important thing is let eastern fans see the games," Bassett added.

Bassett said that CFTO-TV is prepared to "do anything reasonable" in order to provide television coverage of the playoff games for the fans.

Charges Reversed

TORONTO (CP)—Argonaut halfback Jim Rowntree telephoned his wife in Miami to give her the good news after the Toronto team knocked out Ottawa Rough Riders 43-19 in the sudden-death semi-final of the Eastern Football Conference.

Mrs. Rowntree had some news for her husband too: He has a call from the United States Army.

Reporting date is Dec. 5, three days after the Grey Cup game here.

Passes Out For Hornung

PORT RILEY, Kan. (AP)—Paul Hornung, National Football League scoring king since 1959, became Pvt. Hornung Tuesday as he checked into the army base for a tour of active duty.

The Green Bay Packers halfback learned immediately that football playing as a soldier is out—at least temporarily. An army spokesman said no weekend passes will be issued.

Mock Attack 'Kills' 2,600,000

DOUGLAS HARKNESS
... long rebuilding job

CAMP PETAWAWA, Ont. yesterday in a mock nuclear attack on the nation. At least 1,000,000 more are considered to be dying, trapped

To Whom It May Concern

TORONTO (CP)—Change of address and notice of survival cards for every Canadian have been stockpiled at strategic points across Canada, Toronto Postmaster Donald Strathdee said Monday.

The cards would enable survivors to change their address and notify their next-of-kin.

In 15 Canadian cities hit by some 250 bombers and 70 missiles in the cross-Canada exercise Tocsin B, a test of the country's survival plans.

Among those assumed dead following the theoretical shattering of Ottawa by a five-megaton bomb were Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Governor-General Vanier.

Both declined to seek the relative safety of this federal government emergency site 100 miles northwest of the capital at the sound of the first alarm given across Canada at 7 p.m. EST Monday night by 500 sirens.

This army camp now is, in effect, the capital of Canada. Defence Minister Harkness, acting as prime minister, said the 14 million "surviving" Canadians could rebuild the country.

"Undoubtedly it would take years," he told newsmen at a briefing. "The attack cost a loss of one-sixth of the population."

"One would never suggest that five-sixths of the population was not worth saving to rebuild the economy of the nation."

Don't Be Anti-Survival

Ark Angel Living In Ottawa?

PORT COLBORNE, Ont. (CP) — Councillor Coleman Bago, noting the town was negotiating to have an overpass constructed over the Welland Canal, suggested an underpass — which could double as a fallout shelter — would be more practical.

He said government officials are urging citizens to construct shelters and likened the situation to Noah being instructed to build his ark.

"Yes," replied Councillor George Badawey, "but he was told by God, not by the prime minister."

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker last night said people who criticized Civil Defence preparations were using "The Communist argument."

Diefenbaker said he had received "some messages" from well-intentioned Canadians to the effect that the launching of Tocsin B shows a lack of faith in the divine purpose.

FOR WAR

"Others say the defence exercise is unnecessary and, in any event, is a preparation for war."

During an address to the national conference of Canadian universities and colleges, Diefenbaker said "the Communist argument that the exercise is a preparation for war has no basis in fact."

NATIONWIDE TEST

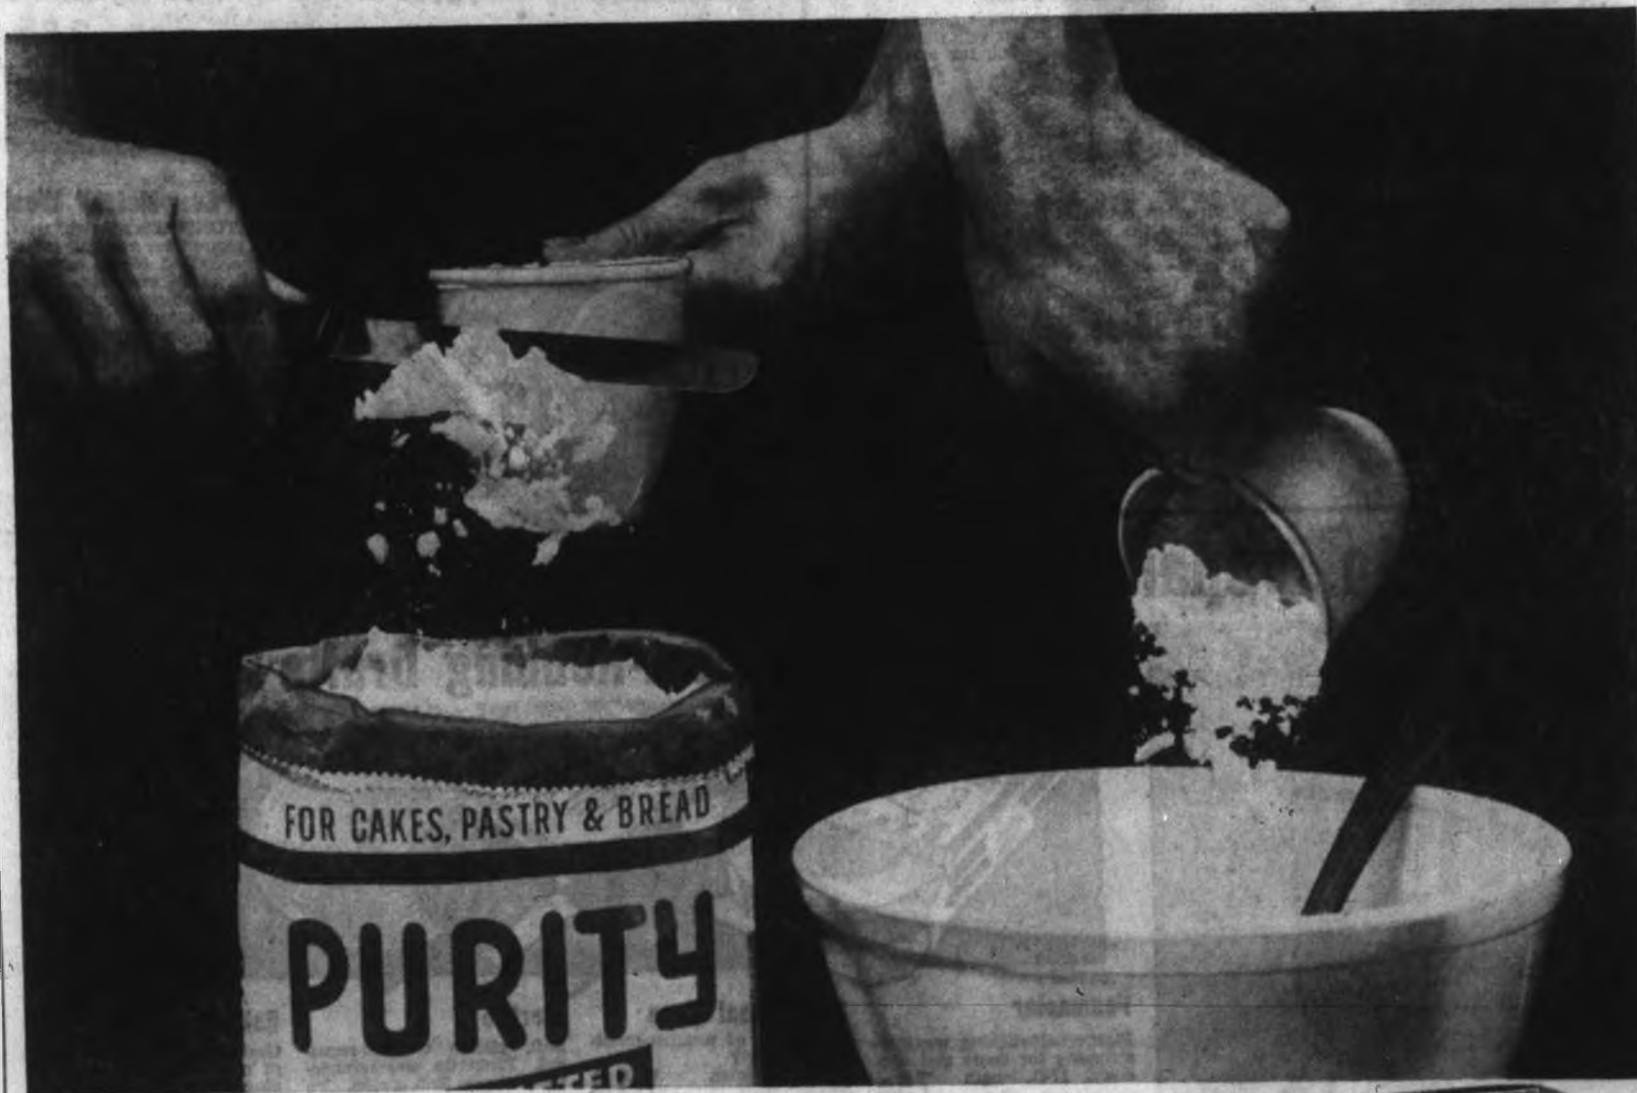

Referring to the nationwide Civil Defence test which ended earlier last night, he said "this and similar exercises are necessary as an assurance for the survival of many who otherwise would die should nuclear war come to us."

"The Kremlin would like Canada and other nations to be completely at the mercy of the threats of Communism," he said.

"The exercise does not show a lack of faith but rather the need of combining works with faith for survival."

Fire Truck, Car Collide

Siren Dying Off At Time of Crash

Fire department officials have disclosed that when a city ladder truck and a small private car collided here yesterday the fire truck driver's foot was not on the siren button.

Gordon Hansen, 3149 Jackson, driver and sole occupant of the big ladder truck, said the vehicle has a foot-operated siren. As he neared the corner of Yates and Cook, some of the crash, he transferred his foot from the siren button to the brake, and the siren's wail was dying off as he entered the intersection, he said.

DIDN'T HEAR

Alexander Craib, 108 Bushby, driver of the small car, told police he didn't hear any siren until he was in the intersection.

Clifford Hinder, 71, of 1337 George, was later reported in satisfactory condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital. A passenger in the Craib car, he was thrown to the pavement by the crash, suffering a head bump, abrasions to the face and hands, and slight chest injuries.

30 SECONDS

The ladder truck was rushing along Yates about 30 seconds behind other department vehicles on the way to Bayco Paint company on Belleville.

At the time of the crash, police said, the traffic light at Yates and Cook was green for Cook Street traffic.

Driver Hansen said all other traffic at the corner, including cars on Cook, had stopped as

B.C. Ferries Speeds Plans For Gulf Link

The B.C. government will start a Tsawwassen-Gulf Islands ferry service—but it will be many months before a new ship can be built to inaugurate the run.

In the meantime Gulf Islanders who want to travel to the mainland will first have to come to Swartz Bay and then catch a government ferry to Tsawwassen.

FINISHED TODAY

Coast Ferries Ltd., which operates a service between the mainland port of Stouffville and the Gulf Islands, withdraws from the run today.

Premier Bennett has authorized the ferry authority to proceed "as quickly as possible" with plans to integrate the present Islands-Swartz Bay service with a service to the lower mainland.

"Plans are proceeding as quickly as possible to provide a service from Tsawwassen to the Gulf Islands and through to Swartz Bay," said a spokesman.

But officials explained none of the vessels in service at present is equipped to cross the Strait of Georgia and a new ship would have to be built before the run could be started.

CHANGE FORCED

Planning for the new vessel for the Gulf Islands-Swartz Bay run had started but this has had to be changed in light of the latest requirements.

Preliminary plans for the design of the vessel are being drafted and when they are completed tenders will be called for construction of the ship.

"All this takes time," said an official. "But we're moving at the highest speed we can."

Dime Meters Reap Extra Thousands

City parking revenue reached $51,500 in the first three months of operation for 10-cent-an-hour meters.

This is $19,900 more than was returned in August, September and October last year.

"There was a little initial opposition among motorists, but things have settled down all right now," a senior city official commented.

Warning Was Too Hush-Hush Civil Defence Officials Admit

Operation Tootsie B — the nation-wide civil defence exercise — uncovered one glaring weakness in Greater Victoria's civil defence system. Many people didn't hear the sirens.

The weakness became apparent when the 20-odd sirens in the target area started wailing.

To a great number of people the siren was just a faint whisper above the traffic noise. And in some outlying areas, they couldn't be heard at all.

Sirens seemed the big draw to the otherwise smooth operation throughout Canada.

In Vancouver, some started and kept wailing long past the appointed time. One in West Vancouver worked so hard at its job it caught fire.

Here in Victoria, Mayor Percy Scurrell said he didn't even hear the sirens.

"I was in my office when my secretary came in and told me they had started. I left the office and only then could I hear them faintly above the traffic noise."

The mayor said he went to the civil defence headquarters

Veteran Brewery Tumbles

One of the oldest breweries in British Columbia came tumbling down under wreckers' hammers yesterday with a crash which would have done justice to any turn-of-the-century barroom fracas. Built in 1900 and now considered unsafe, building was wrecked by Lucky Lager Breweries to save taxes, they up site. — (Evan Bros. photo.)

Scots' Concert

A St. Andrew's concert will follow a business meeting of the St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society in Holyrood House at 8 p.m. Thursday.

"Commodore (V.S.) Godfrey agreed with me that we must have more and better sirens. He told me that a number of other areas had reported the sirens could not be heard."

The mayor said installation of the army's new 10-horsepower sirens should relieve the situation.

At CD headquarters, Commodore Godfrey, target area coordinator, reported things went "smoothly" during the 24-hour exercise.

He said no evaluation of the exercise would be made until a "critique" was held Monday night by CD personnel.

Vic Ingraham Dies

'Indestructible' Heart Stops

By ED COSGROVE

"A man," Vic Ingraham once told a writer for a mass circulation American magazine, "is the toughest thing on earth to kill."

If he has the will to live,

about the only way he can be stopped is by something as final as a bullet through the heart, the hotel operator told the Reader's Digest.

But the 65-year-old owner of the Ingraham Hotel, who survived the worst the North-west Territories had to offer, died yesterday at Vancouver's St. Paul's Hospital of a heart attack.

His death came as a shock to business associates, who had accepted Vic Ingraham as indestructible.

He had been in hospital a week for a checkup. A friend said he believed Mr. Ingraham had suffered a minor attack prior to entering hospital.

Yesterday, just after breakfast, he suffered the fatal seizure. His widow and son Len left for Vancouver immediately.

The body will be brought back to Victoria by McCall Brothers' Funeral Chapel and arrangements for burial will be announced later.

A member of the Courtenay Elks Club and the exclusive Explorers' Club of New York, Mr. Ingraham first went north from Minneapolis to find gold.

A barrel-chested, ambitious youngster, he rushed into the uncharted wilderness of the Great Bear Lake country with a dog team.

While he made no memorable gold strikes, he did hit a bonanza in another line when he acquired a small tugboat, a partner and a newly-fledged freight line.

In the next 10 years, he had built up a tidy business.

Then on Oct. 26, 1953, while hauling a barge loaded with supplies and 11 men to Port Radium, the tug carrying Ingraham and partner Stewart Curry and two crewmen hit rough seas.

The tug blew up and sank, Ingraham and Curry went over the side in a rubber life raft built for one man. For two days they drifted in an icy gale before reaching shore.

In temperatures of 30 degrees below zero, they managed to build a small fire and waited three days for rescue. Realizing the only hope for survival lay with themselves, both men decided to try to find the barge.

They gambled on the possibility the barge had grounded on a point of land 50 miles up the lake and started hiking towards this point.

On the first day, Ingraham's badly-burned feet froze solid. Later, Curry went temporarily blind and had to be led by the hand.

They finally found the barge and its 11-man crew but learned all the food had been lost in the wreck. But once again providence intervened in what appeared to be a hopeless situation and one of the men killed a caribou.

After a year and a half in hospital and countless operations, Mr. Ingraham lost both legs below the knee and the first joint of three fingers on each hand.

Still on crutches, he headed north to take a job as an agent for a transportation company at Great Bear Lake.

In 1937 there was a gold strike at Yellowknife. Along with the horde of gold-seekers hobbled Vic Ingraham, turning his back on a secure job to make another start as a free agent.

Setting up as a trader, he prospered.

He built Yellowknife's first hotel. As the boomtown grew, he built a bigger one, then a third. Along with the hotel business, he started a transportation company, operating a fleet of trucks and tractor-trailers.

He threw away his crutches and, with his artificial legs, drove one of his own rigs through 40 below zero weather. Moving west shortly after the war, he operated the hotel at Langley, then took over the Arbutus Hotel at Courtenay.

The swank, 80-room Ingraham, completed 15 months ago, was his legacy to Victoria, the city of his adoption, said an associate.

VIC INGRAHAM ... associates mourn

While they tried to refuel, gasoline sloshed against a red-hot exhaust pipe and the tug caught fire.

The two men cut the barge loose, then Mr. Ingraham plunged into the engine room to try and rescue the two men below. Driven back by the raging flames, he was severely burned on the hands and feet.

Even Historic Jeremiah Wasn't a Stable Flyer

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

BUMPY FLIGHT: Latest issue of the complimentary TCA magazine "In Flight" urges travellers to go to Europe and see for themselves where world-famous composers, artists, writers and philosophers once lived.

And to point up the article the cover picture is a reproduction of the head of Jeremiah, one of the masterpieces of Michelangelo's art in the Sistine Chapel, Vatican City. It wasn't a very good choice. Jeremiah is shown looking down, his hand cupped over his mouth.

WE OUGHTA BE A LAW: We ought have known better, of course ... It never fails when some avid green thumb produces a monstrous carrot or potato and comes in to claim a record. Sure enough, the telephones will be ringing all next day with gardeners claiming they've produced a bigger monster.

MUSICAL RIDE: May 21-24 — International folk dance festival; May 25-29 — Swiftsure yacht race; July and August — Film festival; July 19-21 — International square dance festival; July 30-Aug. 4 — RCMP Musical Ride; Aug. 2 — Historical pageant; Aug. 2 and 3 — World's championship logger's sports; Aug. 5 — Navy Day.

The B.C. Telephone choir, an East Indian dance troupe, an international side festival yesterday we said Mr. Rainey could probably claim a record. The phones are still ringing. So we can now report that sweet peas are also blooming in the gardens of many people, including Mrs. Arlene Hanson, 3149 Jackson; Len Ford, 405 Kingston; P. A. Gerns, 4084 Hollidays Place; and E. T. Howe, 2901 Blankinship.

Mr. Howe even has green peppers and tomatoes still coming along—and enclosed some samples to prove his point.

And Mr. Rainey himself says the real credit should go to that eminent gardener Jack Todd on Newport who gave him all the tips. Anyway the matter is now closed—no please stop telephoning!

LEAVE THE DRIVING TO US: A city real estate man was showing a prospective client some properties. "You work at the dockyard," said the salesman.

"Have you ever considered living in Esquimalt?"

"No, I could never do that," replied the client.

The realtor asked why.

"Well, I haven't taken my car to work for 12 years," confided the man. "And by the time the buses to the dockyard reach Esquimalt there's standing room only. So the only way I can get a seat is to get on the bus in town."

ABOARD TOWN: Apparently quite a few of those fancy little clocks a firm gave away as a promotion stunt a few weeks ago are now in jewellers' stores—for repairs! ... William Kaman will close the doors of the Royal London Wax Museum Sunday evening and they'll remain shut until April 1.

When it opens again for the next tourist season the museum will be spread over 30 per cent more floor space and plans are for a 25 per cent price increase.

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: Just in case it's bothered you, scientists report that the ally drops often seen floating on the surface of a martini are a "mycotic fungus hyphae."

Increase in exhibits ... Back in town at a local radio station is Barry Weed who, since he was last here in the early 1940s, has been with the CBC and other radio stations in the East ... Most owner Bob Long took a ribbing after he went bowling the other night. The first game he scored 22, and in the second 176! That's an 800 per cent improvement.

BEHIND THE SCENES? Guests at the Sylvia McLaughlin-Billie Henderson wedding at St. Patrick's Church the other day had a special treat. Mrs. John Gillis sang the "Pavane Anglaise."

Old-timers recalled her as "Hot Hot," toast of the Victoria live stage a good many years ago. She trod the boards of the old Princess Theatre and dazzled those on the other side of the footlights. Her beautiful voice rang forth in the church as full and true and rich as ever.

Bernice Smith Bride Of James A. Williams

Standards filled with white chrysanthemums, fern and ivy decorated First Baptist Church for the wedding of Bernice Linda Smith and Mr. James Arthur Williams.

Rev. G. R. Easter performed the candlelit ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred R. Smith, Gonzales Avenue and the son of Mrs. Mary E. Fitness, Oak Bay Avenue.

The fair-haired bride given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a gown of white Chantilly lace over satin. Appliques of pearls and sequins decorated the bodice and the skirt featured a front panel of lace and ruffles of tulle and lace from waist to hemline at the back.

Her finger tip veil cascaded from a pearl and sequin tiara and she carried a colonial bouquet of red garnet roses and white feathered carnations. Jewelry was a pearl necklace.

The attendants, Mrs. Dolores Campbell in aquamarine, Miss Diane Miles and Miss Guyla Bowden in rose coral, had gowns of chiffon styled with shirred bodices and panels draped over sheath skirts. Shirred silk tulle whimsy veils and rosettes formed their headpieces and matched their dresses. All had crystal necklaces and carried colonial bouquets of princess pink roses and white feathered carnations.

Mr. T. Akam was best man and Mr. Gerry Smith and Mr. Jackson Fitness showed guests to pews marked with white satin and tulle bows.

Before the ceremony Mrs. N. Duckworth sang "The Lord's Prayer" and "Because" during the signing of the register.

A reception followed in the Mahogany room of the Strathcona Hotel. The bride's table, covered with a lace cloth was centred with a three-tiered cake set in folds of pink tulle. Mr. Jack Fitness proposed the toast.

Leaving to spend a honeymoon at Ski Cottage, Mount Seymour, the new Mrs. Williams travelled in a white Italian knit dress, white fur Cossack hat, short fur jacket and watermelon red accessories.

The excellent work of members of the Victoria and Vancouver Island Multiple Sclerosis Society will be featured at the Hope Chest tea and sale of work this Saturday, Nov. 18, in Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion Hall, Blanshard Street. Mrs. Wesley Black will open the affair at 2 p.m. Examining some of the knitted wear to be sold are, left, Mrs. Evelyn Lamont, president, and Mrs. Betty Hammond, president of the auxiliary to the society. As well as knits, there will be booths of fancywork, superfluities, hats, home cooking and Christmas novelties. Presiding at the tea table during the day will be Mrs. Ray Williston, Mrs. Eric Martin, Lady Maze, Miss Sara Spencer, Mrs. W. N. Chant, Mrs. W. F. Pinfold, Mrs. G. F. Amyot, Mrs. W. Festival of Decorations At Empress Hotel Dec. 6

One of the first events opening the festive season will take place Wednesday, Dec. 6 at the Empress Hotel when the Auxiliary to the Family and Children's Service will present the Festival of Christmas Decorations.

This popular festival, which has taken place every Christmas for the past eight years, displays the artistic work of Victorians of all ages, and is eagerly awaited by the many visitors who view the entries. Student and adult entries may be made for door displays, mantelpieces, miniature trees, large and small table centrepieces, novelty displays and gift-wrapped parcels.

The competition is open to the general public and entry forms may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Lorene Hunter, EV 6-2838.

The Festival opens at 12 noon and will continue until 9.30 p.m. when winners will be announced. All judging will be by official judges. Mrs. G. R. Pearkes will again present the silver cups and rose bowls to first and second place winners in each class.

Mrs. Ruth Reeve is convener; Mrs. Betty Young, co-convener; Mrs. Lorene Hunter, adult entries; Mrs. Irene Booth, student entries; Mrs. Ann Cooper, raffles; Mrs. Dorothy Huben and Mrs. M. J. Hibbert, gift table; Mrs. V. Wilde and Mrs. Kay Parrott, tickets, and Mrs. N. McDermid, publicity.

Today's tense living, overwork, worry, may affect normal kidney action. If kidneys slow down impurities remain in the system. Then backache and that "tired" feeling often follow. That's the time to take Dadd's Kidney Pills. Dadd's help stimulate the kidneys to normal action. You feel better—work better—play better. Get Dadd's Kidney Pills now. You can depend on Dadd's.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I'm writing about your spunky answer to the woman whose sister-in-law wanted to move the TV set into the dining room. You said mealtime should be family time and that it takes ingenuity and imagination to keep a good conversation going. You closed with "It's no challenge to sit glued to the idiot box and watch anything that moves."

I'd like to inform you, Ann Landers, that after 12 years of marriage and 10 years of television I'd much rather look at the idiot box than listen to that idiot who calls herself a wife. And I'll wager this is why 90 per cent of the men I know watch so darned much TV.—LATE LATE SHOW.

Dear Late Late: I'd like to pose a single question to you, and to the 90 per cent to whom you so blithely refer: Who picked these idiots?

Dear Ann Landers: I have invited my husband's boss and his wife to dinner at our home next month. We've had dinner at their home twice and of course they have the best of everything.

We are just a young couple starting out and our dishes and linen and silver are average. I'm a good cook, however, and I know I can prepare a tasty meal.

The problem is that my husband wants me to borrow silver and dishes, and even knick-knacks and pictures from my mother. She has beautiful things and he is eager to impress the boss.

I say this is wrong. He says many people do it. What is your opinion?—Q.T.

Dear Q.T.: I'm sure many people do it. They are called phonies.

It's permissible to borrow when you don't have enough silver or dishes to serve all the guests, but borrowing to create the illusion of wealth is fakery.

Tell your foolish husband that the boss knows how much he's making. The ways to "impress" him is to turn in a sterling performance on the job.

MRS. EVELYN SHAW

Visits IOOF Lodge

A luncheon will be held today in honor of Mrs. Evelyn Shaw, provincial president of Rebekah Lodge, who is making her official visit.

The luncheon will be held at the home of district deputy, Mrs. Olive Green. This afternoon a tea will be held in the Empress Hotel.

Mrs. Shaw was guest of honor at a banquet last evening at the IOOF Hall prior to the meeting of Colfax Rebekah Lodge No. 1, IOOF, and yesterday afternoon she visited the sick and shut-in members.

CLASSIC TYPES

The big change in sweaters for men and boys is from high novelty types to those that are more classic. The classics include seven inch V-neck pullovers, crew neck pullovers and six button cardigans.

Clubs

WILKINSON RD.

Wilkinson Road United Church WA will hold their annual fall bazaar Thursday, Nov. 16 from 2 p.m. in the church hall, Wilkinson and Glyn Roads. Home cooking, aprons, fancy goods and Christmas goodies will be offered. Tea will be served.

ART GALLERY

Next film showing for children will be on Saturday, Nov. 18 at 10 a.m. in the Art Gallery.

ST. SAVIOUR'S

St. Saviour's fall fair will be held Saturday, Nov. 18 from 2.30 to 9 p.m. in the hall, Henry and Catherine Streets. Mrs. Percy Scurrah will open the affair. Stalls, games, Christmas gifts and door prize, and orders for Christmas cakes will be taken. Pupils of Florence Clough will dance at 7.30 p.m.

Greenland Legacy

Hopes Freezing Up For Forgotten Land

By GEOFFREY DODD
COPENHAGEN (Reuters).—Denmark has begun to realize that the high hopes it once held for developing Greenland, its big island territory in the Arctic, may never come to fruition.

Greenland is not a model "development" country. Indeed, it is nearer to being Denmark's biggest problem of this century.

Half as big as western Europe, and with five-sixths of its area permanently covered by a thick layer of ice, Greenland is at present inhabitable and inhabited only on the coastal fringe.

Given to Denmark by a decision of the international court in 1933, the big island with magnificent scenery still retains many of the characteristics of a colony.

Taxes are different from those of European Denmark, and so are some laws. When Denmark in 1960 joined the European Free Trade Association, Greenland stayed outside for some months before being included at the wish of the Danish government.

To the 30,000 or so residents who lead a precarious life along the coast, neighbors to huge glaciers which fill the surrounding sea with mountains of ice, it seems that Denmark has turned its back on Greenland and is looking more towards underdeveloped countries in other parts of the world.

Greenlanders are related indirectly to the Canadian Eskimos. But since the first European settlers came in 1723, they have intermarried, forming a distinct type. Officially all are Christians.

CATCH FISH

The traditional occupation of hunting seals and whales has suffered a setback, and more men now catch fish for a living, while others work at fish processing factories erected in several towns.

Greenland needs schools, industries and hospitals, and Greenlanders want better living standards.

Abstract Painter Scolds

Lots of Clowns In Modern Art

By CAROL KENNEDY
LONDON (CP).—It's rare to find an abstract painter who cheerfully admits there's a lot of "monkey business" about modern art, but Canada's Bill Newcombe doesn't believe in the reverent approach.

Seated among canvases and watercolors in his sunny North London attic studio, Newcombe talked of "those clowns" who ride over their paintings on bicycles or slash holes in a blank canvas and call it art by a highfown name.

They are mainly publicity-hunters, he says, and they wouldn't get as far as they do without the eagerness of art critics to latch on to anything new.

LIKE CATS

"Critics," snorts Newcombe, an ex-bomber pilot from Victoria and Toronto with a salty turn of speech.

"They're like a lot of cats, ears pricking up to hear what the other fellow is saying. If one of them thinks up a high-sounding phrase like 'planes within planes' to describe an abstract painting, the others all try to outdo him with some other phrase. And what does it all mean anyway? Nothing."

GAVE UP CAREER

Newcombe, a slight, nut-brown man of 53, is intensely serious about his work. He gave up an established reputation as an academic painter in Canada to come over here and experiment.

"Abstract painters didn't have a chance in Canada six years ago," he says. "But things are better now."

He defines what he is trying to create as "something that will live in space and be alive, like a blade of grass, without necessarily being related to anything else."

NO DIFFERENCE

"Abstract painters are no different to any other kind of serious ones. One is always trying to find that vital spark that makes a painting live in its own right. It has nothing to do with what you paint or how you paint it."

"Rembrandt achieved it with portraits—we try to do it another way."

Immigrant Artist Decorates Church

HAMILTON (CP).—The artist who designed the throne for Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie is decorating a Hamilton church.

Yugoslav-born Igor Suhacey earns his living as one of Canada's few experts on ancient Byzantine art.

DESIGNS WALL

Since coming to Canada in 1956 he has done decorations for churches in Toronto, Kirkland Lake, Ont., and Chicago as well as Hamilton.

He now is designing a decorative wall for St. Vladimir Ukrainian Orthodox Church here.

IN ETHIOPIA

After training as an art student in Germany, Igor spent seven years in Ethiopia with the public works ministry, designing palace buildings, stained glass windows, gateways and other artistic structures.

When he left Africa for Canada five years ago, Igor brought with him his father, Peter, who is also an expert in designing icons and decorations for church of the Eastern Orthodox rites.

Officers Picked By Red Chevron

President of the Red Chevron Association for the coming year will be W. H. McMurray, 1677 Hollywood.

Others elected at a recent meeting were Charles Clare, vice-president, and L. G. Scott, secretary-treasurer. C. N. Ashton, Thomas Campbell, A. T. Drew, Montague Gosnell, R. L. Hamilton, J. C. Matheson, W. B. Montie, John McVie, W. Glover, Walter Simpson and J. A. Watson, are directors.

how do you judge a man's worth?

By the amount of money he can earn — or by the measure of his service to society? If the latter, then B.C.'s dentists must stand in high regard. For B.C. is in urgent need of more dental care — and today there are far too few qualified men to meet this need.

Time, money and serious study are required to become a dentist. He must undertake at least six years of specialized university training to obtain his doctor's degree. He must also possess good judgment and a high degree of manual dexterity and digital skill. Above all, he must have a sincere interest in people and a desire to serve them.

Could you measure up to these standards? If so, write for a pamphlet called Dentistry As A Career. Dentistry will demand much from you, but it offers you greater opportunities to serve your fellow men than any other profession.

Iran Revolt Urged By Moscow

LONDON (AP).—Moscow radio urged the people of Iran yesterday to revolt against the shah.

The Persian-language broadcast said the current program of the Soviet Communist party "lights the future path of the world, including that of Iran" and shows "the path leading to really independent democratic governments."

Imagination a 'Must'

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRIS

I remember reading a psychological novel some years ago—I forget its name—about a man who was completely without imagination. He ran up a creditable score as a fighter pilot, for being without imagination, he had no fear, and it never even occurred to him that he might be killed. He was an excellent cook, for he simply followed the cook book, for its finest detail and was never tempted to try adding an extra pinch of this or that. Where he failed miserably, though, was when he tried his hand at planting a perennial flower border. He simply couldn't see, in his mind's eye, what the flowers would look like six months hence.

When you sit down to plan out a perennial border, you have to juggle a dozen factors all at the one time—height of plant, color of bloom and how it will blend with its neighbors, season of bloom, liking for sun or shade, soil preferences and many others. One problem you run smack dab into is what to plant in the back row.

to four feet in height—but not so many of the tall fellows for the back of the border. Yet, in order to arrange a striking display, you need a wide selection of really good plants in the back row, otherwise the border will be dull at certain seasons and will lack distinction.

There isn't too much difficulty if you stick to the autumn-flowering kinds—there are lots of excellent tall Michaelmas daisies, goldenrods, Golden Glow and coneflowers—but this would leave the back row flowerless all through the spring and summer. Delphiniums are indispensable, of course, but as these are usually passing out of bloom by the end of June, more kinds are needed to keep up the color through high summer.

The old Jerusalem Cross, hchnis chalcodonia, is worth keeping in mind: it is a striking plant, five feet or so tall, with flaming scarlet flowers in July and August. Another, a bit more restful on the eyes, is galega hartlandii, five feet, carrying a profusion of pea-shaped blooms in lavender and white.

I have seen the Tree Mallow, lavatera alba, used to good effect in the back row, with showy carmine blooms in early August, but the plant is a bit too vigorous and "pushy" for my taste. I prefer its cousin, lavatera cachemiriana, a slim six-footer bearing pale rose-pink blooms all through July and August. Not many nurseries carry this plant, but it is a cinch to raise from seed.

When you think of the Red Hot Poker, you have a mental picture of a two-foot plant, but a few varieties grow tall enough for the back row in the border and certainly there isn't anything more showy in midsummer. Star of Baden makes stout spikes five feet tall in golden yellow, Mount Etna grows to about the same height but with intense scarlet blooms, and Nobilis is the giant of the family, six feet or better, in a fiery orange-red. Probably the most dramatic of the lot is Eremurus, the foxtail lily, with stately spikes towering to eight or 10 feet. The flowers are mostly pastel yellows and pinks, blending delicately with the blue of the delphiniums. These are grown from fleshy, very brittle roots which must be handled gently to avoid breaking and need plenty of sand or coarse grit worked into the planting site.

Eremus are a bit on the expensive side, running a dollar each or more, but don't be tempted into trying them from seed—they take at least six years to bloom!

Peace Would Ruin Us!

I had lunch with an economist the other day, Prof. Robert Carey of Columbia University, who describes himself as a liberal economist of the same stripe as Walter Heller and Co. who surround President Kennedy, and I asked him a question that had bothered some of the rest of you put there who are, like me, innocents in the Dismal Science.

but in the unlikely event that it should—well, it would pull the rug out from under our economy and everything would go smash. The only hope would be to divert some of the $55,000,000,000 allotted in this fiscal year for defense into other channels, such as a vast public works program. The alternative is even worse.

to do the same. "It could ruin us," said Prof. Carey. Hasn't anyone laid out a blueprint of what would happen if the country was fully automated in peacetime? "Not that I know of," he said.

Since the American economy seems pegged to what The Nation magazine calls the Warfare State, since automation is rapidly and remorselessly putting more people out of work than it is putting people to work, and since the U.S. still, in spite of vast defense expenditures, has that nagging little seven per cent of the employables still unemployed, what would happen if peace should suddenly break out?

Even with an enormous warfare state in high gear, the continuing unemployment, I said, seemed to be getting worse, not better. "Unemployment," said Carey, "promises to be chronic for a long time even in a recovery period. We're in a bit of a jam, aren't we? To get the economy going, we've got to automate. I've heard no long range proposals to handle this problem. Since the Second World War, the economic cycles have got shorter and shorter but no less severe. After the '37 and '38 recession, the economy picked up in '39 but it never really got off the ground."

Of course, I'm not such a pessimist as to imagine that peace might break out unexpectedly but it should be planned for.

Prof. Carey, a cheerful, weather-beaten, grey-haired man, who looks quite a lot like John Kenneth Galbraith, answered immediately and much too cheerfully: "There's no little chance of peace breaking out

Suppose, I asked, Khrushchev suddenly said: "Let's really disarm," and began publicly dismantling his war plants and armies, forcing the U.S.

While Europe is in the throes of the greatest prosperity it has ever known the U.S. economy is pegged more and more to the public sector—a nice way of saying the Cold Warfare state.

"The public sector is going to grow and grow even without a war or a cold war," said the professor. "Even in the absolutely inconceivable event that Barry Goldwater be elected President of the United States, this pattern could not be altered. There are some forces greater than Mr. Goldwater."

"I am not pessimistic. If we go along as we are now, barring a major war or a major peace, we are eventually going to have a welfare state."

Marine Corps Sees Red

Now that Major-General Edwin A. Walker has resigned from the U.S. Army the truth can be told as to why we left the United States Marine Corps in 1945, only 16 years before retirement. We resigned because we were admonished and removed from command of a barbershop cleaning detail at Cherry Point, North Carolina, when we tried to indoctrinate our men in the politics in which we believed and in which we believed our men should believe in.

a Communist, the secretary of the navy was a Communist and the president of the United States as well as all members of Congress were Reds.

couldn't stomach being censured and ordered around by little men.

The U.S. defense department saw fit to criticize us for these actions and wanted to transfer us to command of a salt water shower detail in Hawaii. But rather than work under little men who in the name of the country punish loyal service to it, we decided to leave the Marines and forfeit all the benefits we had built up in our four years as private, to do what we found it impossible to do in uniform.

We felt we had to impart this information to our men as they thought the enemy was the Japanese, when in fact the real enemy was not the people we were fighting but the people at home who had infiltrated all the high places of government. We tried to speak out against these people, we tried to tell our men to vote against them in the elections, we tried to show them that a democracy could only survive with a strong military government in command of the situation—and for this we were censured and our rights encroached on by the executive branch of the government, who criticized us for speaking the truth in accordance with conviction and conscience.

There is no use going into the details of our court-martial. All we said while sweeping up hair in the barber shop was that our first sergeant had a beer bottle for a head and a gas bag for a stomach. We didn't realize he was getting a shave at the time.

Early in our career we discovered our first sergeant was a Communist, our commanding officer was a Communist, the commander of the base

In defeat it turned out we were in good company. Ten million men in the armed services quit at the same time we did, mostly because they

In typical Communist fashion he took exception to this description and we decided the best thing to do was leave the service and go into civilian life where we could express these opinions without fear of getting 30 days mess duty.

Now that General Walker doesn't have any military duties he can hunt Communists to his heart's content. The first place we always look is under our bed.

Hollywood Today

By Sheila Graham

A Star Plays Role for Nothing

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Ex-circusman Bert Lancaster received $500,000 for playing one of the Nazi judges in "Judgment at Nuremberg." Spencer Tracy settled for a share of the profits. I predict he will make more than Bert. As you know, Montgomery Clift played his role for nothing—for love of the part.

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

There are only two stars in Hollywood who own a silver-gray Ferrari sports car—Dean Cain and Ernest Borgnine. Neither of them race. They just like the fancy look of the auto.

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved with this inexpensive substance right in the privacy of their own home without any discomfort or inconvenience.

Darryl Zanuck is the only producer working in Europe who is praying for bad weather—for the battle scenes in "The Longest Day." With seven camera crews and seven cameramen Darryl admits, "It's a bigger job than I anticipated." After four months of filming, there are another four to go!

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.

One reason for so much filming of Hollywood pictures in Europe: In Hollywood an extra earns more than $20 a day. Over there it's $5.50. This adds up to big money with pictures like "Lawrence of Arabia," "Cleopatra" and Sam Beckett's "King of Kings."

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough

Sight of a recent week in Rome: Director Joe Mankiewicz perched high up on the camera boom, giving orders to 4,000 extras in the $1,000,000 "Cleopatra" forum, and shouting: "There's a hot dog salesman there, get him out!"

Girl Found Dead In 'Ghost House'

Police Wife Confesses

VANCOUVER (CP)—A North Vancouver housewife, whose husband earns $475 a month as a Vancouver police constable, admitted Tuesday stealing $30,000 from the office where she worked.

Court was told Mrs. June Svenson, 29, had taken the money over a three-year period from Ideal Electric (Western) Ltd., where she worked for $374 a month as head bookkeeper and office manager.

DOCTORED TAPES
He said Mrs. Svenson began taking money by transferring funds from one file to another. When this became too complicated she doctored adding machine tapes to cover up. Errors were noted by the firm's auditor.

LONDON, Ont. (UPI)—Police yesterday hunted the slayer of seven-year-old Sylvia Fink who was hanged in a "haunted house" after her assailant unsuccessfully tried to criminally assault her.

The girl's body was found hanging from overhead electric wiring by her own skirt belt. Part of her body, hidden by storm windows, was resting on the floor.

FOUND BODY
Friends of the family found the body Monday night in an abandoned house 100 yards from her home. The house, a favorite hangout for neighborhood children, was referred to as "the haunted house" by youngsters.

A post-mortem revealed the slayer attempted to rape the child before she was strangled.

MURDER BY ADULT
"We are now sure this was a murder by an adult," Detective Sgt. Laverne Shipley said.

Earlier, police had questioned two 14-year-old boys who said they were in the building Monday afternoon.

DID NOT RETURN
Sylvia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Fink, did not return home after her mother sent her to a corner store for the evening newspaper. She was last seen leaving the store.

Fink, 28, came to Canada 12 years ago from Latvia. He said Sylvia would not have entered the deserted house alone.

Sooke Harbor

Hunter Search Stopped by Wind

Search for the body of a Victoria hunter, presumed drowned in Sooke Harbor in last Friday's gale, was balked again yesterday by wind.

Gilbert Olmstead, 39, of 3400 Wacana, who had been living for a time on a barge at Whiffen Spit, Sooke, left the spit Friday at 3:30 p.m. to hunt deer on the East Sooke side of the harbor.

IN SMALL PUNT
He set out in a small punt belonging to John Fernyhough of Richview Road.

Search started Monday when he had not returned, and the punt, swamped and with Olmstead's gun still aboard, was found near the East Sooke shoreline.

STORM VICTIM?
Remembering the fierce gales that swept south Vancouver Island last week, it was feared that Mr. Olmstead had fallen victim to the storm Friday afternoon.

Fish commissioner J. A. Brookes, who located the punt Monday, believed Mr. Olmstead got into trouble on his return trip from East Sooke. "For one thing," he said yesterday, "Olmstead was not experienced. If the wind had come up on his way out, he would have turned back."

RIFLE LOADED
"For another, there was a shell in the chamber of his rifle when we found it. It seems likely he had been hunting, ready to shoot, had given up and started back."

Mr. Brookes said the search went on yesterday from 8 a.m. until 11:30 a.m., when rising winds put a ripple on the water making it impossible to see.

KEEL AND GRASS
"We had equipment for dragging," Mr. Brookes added, "but didn't use it because of the amount of kelp and grass in the water. We may use it when we start out in the morning, when it's calm."

Taking part in the search yesterday were Mr. Brookes, Mr. Fernyhough, RCMP Cpl. Lew Dempsey and Vic Hoyle, with whom Mr. Olmstead had been doing the odd day's work on the log booms. They used three boats.

Unions, Bosses

Job Holdups Prevented On Peace

Establishment of two organizations representing all unions and all employers on the huge Peace River power project was termed yesterday a major step in the promotion of peaceful industrial relations.

All unions will be represented by the Allied Hydro Council and all employers by the Peace River Power Construction Co. Ltd.

HOLDUP PREVENTED
Any industrial disputes which may arise will be up to these agencies to settle rather than having many small unions fighting many employers.

The move will also prevent one union from holding up the entire project.

SIMILAR TO IWA

Labor Minister Leslie Peterson said it was the first time such an agreement had been reached in B.C. although it is similar to the one operating between the International Woodworkers of America and the Forest Industrial Management Council which represents all forestry employers.

The six-pound, four-ounce daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Williams, 2541 Fernwood, was born before 1 a.m. Sunday in a police patrol car just as the vehicle entered Royal Jubilee Hospital grounds.

Death Toll Now 160 In Mexican Cyclone

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The defence ministry said Tuesday night the death toll from cyclone Tara had soared to 160 and more casualties were feared as floods swept the Pacific coast above Acapulco.

The village of Nuxco was destroyed by torrential rains and floods, officials said. Much of a 120-mile coastal area remained blacked out and only air drops and parachutists were able to get in supplies and medicines.

Helicopters were rushed to the disaster area northwest of the resort city of Acapulco. The city itself was not damaged.

The storm struck suddenly over the weekend, but reports were delayed by destroyed communications. Four days later, details were still lacking. Much of the damage and many of the fatalities resulted from floods following in the wake of the storm that roared in from the Pacific. Damage was estimated at more than $1,000,000.

REDS REVAMP NAVY TO COUNTER U.S.

Nuclear Armada Worries Russia

LONDON (UPI)—Russia is urgently reorganizing its navy in the face of growing American nuclear dominance, the authoritative "Jane's Fighting Ships" reported today.

The new edition of the reference book was published coincident with a belief in naval circles that Russia is trying to develop a torpedo with a nuclear warhead in an effort to counter the American armada of 58 aircraft carriers.

In the event of war the carriers could loose hundreds of planes carrying nuclear weapons against Russian targets. One of the top Soviet priorities is how to deal with this threat to its lifelines.

SATURATION PLAN
Russia, with more submarines than the rest of the world combined, is expected in any future war to try to saturate the oceans with its underwater craft. If it could perfect an atomic torpedo it would intensify the danger to Allied ships.

TWO 'KILLERS'
Jane's said the United States has two nuclear warheaded torpedoes designed as submarine killers—"Subroc" and "Astor." But until now there have not been any reports of Russian progress in this field. Jane's said the major reorganization of the Russian navy is so thorough that Premier Khrushchev has had to reverse the opinion—freely offered the U.S. navy during his San Francisco visit—that the cruiser is obsolete.

CRUISERS CONVERTED
Russia is keeping all the cruisers it has built in recent years and some of them apparently are being converted into guided missile ships. In this category of warships, as in every important one except submarines, the United States outnumbers Russia—47 cruisers to 25.

FIGURE REDUCED
The Soviet dependence on the submarine as its main weapon of sea warfare once again is the feature of the U.S. naval setup although Jane's said the "frightening figure" of 500 undersea craft under the Red flag has been reduced to about 450. The United States has 150 submarines.

CLAIM DOUBTED
Jane's doubts Russia's recent claim that it has more, faster and more heavily armed nuclear-powered submarines than the United States.

"The U.S. record in this field stands so high at present, and she has such a good start (23 nuclear powered submarines have been completed of which seven are Polaris missile armed) that it is doubtful if

West Can't Afford To Ignore Offer Of Olive Branch

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker last night said the West could not afford to "dismiss out of hand" any indication that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev wanted to reach a four-power agreement on Berlin.

Diefenbaker said the immediate task of Western statesmen was "to continue to explore the areas of possible four-power agreement and to make the necessary contacts with the Soviet Union."

'POSITION ASSURED'
The prime minister told the national conference of Canadian universities and colleges that Khrushchev emerged from the recent Communist party congress "with his internal position apparently assured."

"He may feel that he can afford to be a little more reasonable about the problem he has created over Berlin,"

CANADA ACTIVE
"While the free nations have every reason to be wary of Mr. Khrushchev, at the same time they cannot afford to dismiss out of hand any indication that he recognizes the necessity and desirability of a four-power agreement on Berlin."

Doctor Let Cat Out Of Bag

Curiosity didn't kill this cat—but it almost shocked a local doctor out of 10 years' growth.

The cat in question—a large yellow tom—was released Monday night from the Jubilee area home of two boys suffering from the flu, following the doctor's visit.

A search was just being organized when the doctor returned—cat in hand. He had stopped at the home of another patient, opened his medical bag, and out popped the cat.

Clause 'Betrayal' Says Art Teacher

By IAN STREET

The provincial government has inserted a "good behaviour" clause in its order for reinstatement of a teacher fired last June by Greater Victoria school board on grounds that he failed to adhere to the curriculum.

The cabinet, sitting as council of public instruction, decreed that the dismissal be set aside and ordered the teacher in future to "adhere to the instructions" of the superintendent of local schools.

The reinstatement decision was based on the unanimous findings of a three-member board of reference, which heard the appeal of Colquitz Junior High School industrial arts teacher Geoffrey C. D'Arcy, that the "reasons for dismissal in this instance were not sufficiently proved."

'SUBJUGATION'
Mr. D'Arcy said yesterday the breadth of interpretation that it was possible to attach to the rider could "negate the whole proceedings" of his appeal.

He added: "No free and responsible citizen would accept such comprehensive subjugation (as the government proposed) and for a teacher to do so would be to betray his society, his profession and his educational responsibilities."

SUGGESTION DENIED
The teacher said he objected to the rider on two main grounds.

The first was the suggestion that as a teacher, "I must follow blind any and all instructions without regard for my own convictions or the educational methods involved or ignored."

Also, Mr. D'Arcy said, it contained a suggestion which he vigorously denied, that in the past he had not fully complied with the requests of the district superintendent of schools "in all matters of organization and sound educational practice."

'CAUSE HELPED'
Mr. D'Arcy said he was "gratified" that the council of public instruction had confirmed the favorable decision of the board of reference.

He said the general cause of maintaining a healthy educational system had been helped considerably.

Spokesmen for Greater Victoria school board declined to comment on the government order until it is discussed by trustees at a public meeting Monday night.

City Fires Capable Men To Qualify for Grants

City hall has to fire experienced employees and hire inexperienced men to qualify for provincial grants towards its winter works program.

"The man we know is suitable and capable has to be fired and put on unemployment insurance, and later social assistance, while we hire someone else who is already on social assistance," Ald. Geoffrey Edgell, chairman of city public works committee said yesterday.

The committee asked City Manager C. C. Wyatt and engineer James Garnett to prepare a brief on the city's position. The committee will use the brief in representations to the provincial government.

Discussion centred around a circular from the B.C. government stating that provincial grants will only be paid in the case of newly-hired employees who had been receiving social welfare payments.

Previously, the city claimed and was given grants for regular employees who would normally have been dismissed in the winter.

Aid Pledged Korea

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy met Tuesday with South Korea's revolutionary leader, Gen. Chung Hwe Park, and promised his nation "all possible" continued U.S. military and economic support.

Kennedy's renewal of the United States' pledge eight years ago to help defend South Korea included "the use of armed forces if there is a renewal of armed attack," a joint communique said.

1066 and All That

LONDON (CP)—While Canadians bubble with plans for their 1967 centenary celebrations, Britons are brooding about the impending 900th anniversary of the Battle of Hastings.

No one doubts the battle's importance. Despite strong challenges from dates like 1588, 1805 and 1940, the year 1066 retains its unique connection with the greatest invasion England has ever known.

Every self-respecting Englishman is perfectly aware that the creative conscience of his race was forged in the battle heat at Hastings.

But there are problems—as Hastings borough council learned recently when it announced plans to mount a joint Anglo-French mock invasion to commemorate the Norman conquest.

Although 900 years of integration makes it difficult for many people to decide whether Hastings was a tragic defeat or a glorious victory, reaction to the council's plans reveals that Anglo-Saxon attitudes are bitter still and Norman blood can be felt yet.

Battle ranks began to form in the letters column of The Daily Telegraph and the first arrow—a Saxon shaft—came from the bow of Rear-Admiral G. J. Cresswell.

He deplored the fact that an English defeat by a foreign "gangster" should be celebrated at all. Harold, the admiral asserted, was undoubtedly the "nobbiest figure" of the fray.

Retaliation came from Norman sympathizer Mary

Darby. She pointed out that "by the standards of the day" the Bastard of Falsais had the strongest possible claim to the crown of England.

A Celt named O'Connor sided with the anti-Saxons by damning Harold as a murderer's son, a bigamist and a usurper who met his just reward by dying with a Norman arrow in his eye.

As the ranks began to close, an impartial bystander suddenly turned anger into confusion by announcing that William did not land at Hastings at all.

"It is indisputable that William landed at Pevensey, some 12 miles west of Hastings," wrote Trevor Norman.

"Accordingly the worthy villagers of Pevensey are going ahead, with plans to celebrate the landing in their own village."

At this point an historical society in a Sussex community called Battle, named after the inland village where the famous met, decided it was time to soothe the belligerents with a "band of brothers" theme.

Chairman C. T. Chevallier—a suspected Norman—said the society fully appreciates all the graces and virtues of Harold but also believes that the Normans, although cruel, "imparted organization and cohesion to the previously discordant English."

"We of Pevensey, Hastings and Battle are surely right to commemorate this great if tragic happening. For in us, as demonstrably in all Englishmen everywhere, mingles the blood of conquerors and conquered alike."

Final Talks Set On Land Sale For Giant Motel

Nanaimo Roundup

NANAIMO — City council will enter into final negotiations with A and B Construction Co. for sale of city land at Terminal and Comox for construction of a giant motor-hotel.

Council decided to sell the land, providing the company carries out its commitments, after learning a second bidder dropped out of negotiations because its shopping centre plans couldn't meet a city deadline.

City fathers have suggested to residents near the Mayo mill that, if they don't like the early morning noise of the firm's lumber carrier, they can pay charges under municipal statutes such as the anti-noise bylaw.

A petition from more than 30 residents of Eaton Street said the noise sometimes keeps them awake until 2 a.m.

A public hearing on renovation of Nanaimo's city cemetery will be held in City Hall Nov. 21.

Ald. Jack Parker says details of the plan to update the old cemetery by turning it into a lawn-type cemetery, will be given to the public at that time.

City council has granted an application for a trades licence by Colliers Encyclopedias. The company had told council retail merchants here will never be given the right to sell the reference books, because they "don't have the knowledge necessary to explain the contents."

The Nanaimo parks and recreation commission has been asked to study the problem of leaves from Halliburton Street playground making a mess of the property of nearby residents. City aldermen referred a petition from property owners to the commission.

Residents suggested the trees might be cut down if there is no other solution. But aldermen said this move "would be a shame."

Council has decided it has no alternative but to start taxing a Roman Catholic church.

Ald. Haig Burns said "it's very regrettable, but Saint Peter's Church is not being used at all at the moment, and to be exempt, it must be in actual use as a house of worship."

Ald. Burns, who soon will ask the B.C. government to develop Newcastle Island, was authorized by Mayor Pete Maffeo to carry city council support for the plan. The local Chamber of Commerce has suggested the development as a winter works project.

A request from Nanaimo General Hospital that Beaufort Avenue be paved as part of the coming year's paving program was turned down by city council, since it is a decision for the 1962 council. The hospital wanted the work done by the time the new hospital is open next fall.

Parker's Victory Upheld on Appeal

NANAIMO—Motorist Cliff Williams, who Aug. 23 upset a parking charge on a technicality, had further success Tuesday when the city lost its appeal.
Magistrate Lionel Beavor-Potts had agreed with Williams that the words "penny" and "nickel," used on the parking meter, are not legal terms in Canada.
Before County Court Judge Arnold Hanna, Williams' lawyer Ralph Hutchinson argued Tuesday there was no proof that the meter would operate and a city bylaw specifies meters "shall be capable of operating."
The judge agreed.

'Driven Crazy' Irked Busman Stole Grader

UCLUELET—"Fed up" bus driver Noel Hamlin has been fined $25 in police court here for stealing a B.C. public works department grader to level a road that had been "driving me and my passengers crazy."
Hamlin, 33, has been driving his 33-seat bus from Port Alberni to Tofino and returned three times weekly since September. He said the surface of the Long Beach road seemed to be getting worse every trip. So, late on recent night, as he was driving back alone to Tofino, he saw the 14-ton grader and worked over a three-mile stretch of the road "until I thought it was level," then left the grader in a ditch.

When Magistrate Joseph Webb said he had no right to do the job on his own, Hamlin said passengers were always complaining and "I thought I'd save the government a little work."
Officials in Victoria said Hamlin didn't level the road but actually made it worse.

Courtenay Agrees On Teachers' Pay

VANCOUVER — Courtenay school district has reached agreement on teachers' salaries with an increase of 1.8 per cent, a spokesman for the B.C. School Trustees' Association said Tuesday.

Settlement was on the Vancouver Island pattern with an increase at the top and adjustment on scale. Elementary basic for two years professional training rose $200 to bring it in line with the surrounding area. A boost of $150 was made for six years' professional training at maximum.

Dock Wiring Contract Awarded

CAMPBELL RIVER—Franklyn Electric of Courtenay has won a federal contract to electrify the government and fishermen's floats here. Local bidder G. Farrell lost out by $51. Contract follows protests by commercial fishermen over lack of lighting and power.

Herring Closure Demanded

KYUQUOT — A petition to close the west coast of Vancouver Island to all herring fishing for at least five years is being circulated here by the Pacific Trollers Association. The Association believes the step is necessary to rebuild depleted stocks for future herring and salmon fishery. It is further asking fisheries department to make use of lights illegal during herring seining.
The move would reduce the numbers of young salmon also caught in the nets.

Veteran Alderman's Hope: Peace in Alberni Council

Peace in Alberni Council

ALBERNI—Three Alberni aldermen whose terms expire this year have decided to seek re-election. They are Aldermen Charles Blair, Russell Foxcroft and George Dunbar.
Ald. Blair, completing his eighth year on the council, said: "In spite of the intolerable frustrations of the past two years on council, I have agreed to stand again."
"By so doing, I hope to be able to restore peace, harmony and goodwill within city council, so we may resume the progressive improvements citizens have a right to expect."

Water Link Sought

PORT ALBERNI—Owners of property in a provincial government subdivision outside city limits have applied for water service from the city of Port Alberni.

According to an application read at council meeting, the owners are prepared to form an improvement district in order to receive the service when the current waterworks improvement project is completed. It was stated that 32 parcels of land are in the area, with only two not privately owned.

The lots in the subdivision north of city limits on the new highway were put up for auction by the government last year.

Council agreed that it might be possible to give water service to the area but that a decision should not be made before the works are completed. The application was referred to the incoming council.

"There is much to be done, and it can only be done by a mayor and council willing to co-operate and work together as a team. I hope to be a member of such a team."

Mayor Mabel Anderson, who has consistently disagreed with other members of council, has not yet declared herself a candidate for re-election. Fred Bishop, a former alderman, will seek the mayor's seat.

CONTEST CERTAIN

Ald. Dunbar is completing his first two-year term, Ald. Foxcroft his second.

In Port Alberni, a contest is assured for the three council seats with announcement of local postmaster E. L. (Les) Hammer he is a candidate. He is president of the Canadian Postmasters' Association and head of the local Navy League branch.

Already in the running are incumbents Fred Weaver and Earle Bowen and former alderman Norman Odgers.

Fire Truck, Car Collide

Siren Dying Off At Time of Crash

Fire department officials have disclosed that when a city ladder truck and a small private car collided here yesterday the fire truck driver's foot was not on the siren button.

Gordon Hansen, 3149 Jackson, driver and sole occupant of the big ladder truck, said the vehicle has a foot-operated siren. As he neared the corner of Yates and Cook, scene of the crash, he transferred his foot from the siren button to the brake, and the siren's wail was dying off as he entered the intersection, he said.

DIDN'T HEAR

Alexander Craib, 103 Bushby, driver of the small car, told police he didn't hear any siren until he was in the intersection.

Clifford Hinder, 71, of 1337 George, was later reported in satisfactory condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital. A passenger in the Craib car, he was thrown to the pavement by the crash, suffering a head bump, abrasions to the face and hands, and slight chest injuries.

30 SECONDS

The ladder truck was rushing along Yates about 30 seconds behind other department vehicles on the way to Rapco Paint company on Belleville.

At the time of the crash, police said, the traffic light at Yates and Cook was green for Cook Street traffic.

Driver Hansen said all other traffic at the corner, including cars on Cook, had stopped as he approached.

Dime Meters Reap Extra Thousands

City parking revenue reached $51,300 in the first three months of operation for 10-cent-an-hour meters.

This is $13,900 more than was returned in August, September and October last year.

"There was a little initial opposition among motorists, but things have settled down all right now," a senior city official commented.

Warning Was Too Hush-Hush Civil Defence Officials Admit

Operation Tocsin B — the nation-wide civil defence exercise — uncovered one glaring weakness in Greater Victoria's civil defence system. Many people didn't hear the sirens.

The weakness became apparent when the 20-odd sirens in the target area started wailing.

To a great number of people, the siren was just a faint whisper above the traffic noise. And in some outlying areas, they couldn't be heard at all.

Sirens seemed the big flaw in the otherwise smooth operation throughout Canada. In Vancouver, some sirens kept wailing long past the appointed time. One in West Vancouver worked so hard at its job it caught fire.

Here in Victoria, Mayor Percy Scurr said he didn't even hear the sirens.

"I was in my office when my secretary came in and told me they had started. I left the office and only then could hear them faintly above the traffic noise."

The mayor said he went to the civil defence headquarters on Blanshard Street.

"Commodore (V.S.) Godfrey agreed with me that we must have more and better sirens. He told me that a number of other areas had reported the sirens could not be heard."

The mayor said installation of the army's new 10-horsepower sirens should relieve the situation.

At CD headquarters, Commodore Godfrey, target area co-ordinator, reported things went "smoothly" during the 24-hour exercise.

He said no evaluation of the exercise would be made until a "critique" was held Monday night by CD personnel.

Veteran Brewery Tumbles

One of the oldest breweries in British Columbia came tumbling down under wreckers' hammers yesterday with a crash which would have done justice to any turn-of-the-century barroom fracas. B.C. Ferries Speeds Plans For Gulf Link

The B.C. government will start a Tsawwassen-Gulf Islands ferry service—but it will be many months before a new ship can be built to inaugurate the run.

In the meantime Gulf Islanders who want to travel to the mainland will first have to come to Swartz Bay and then catch a government ferry to Tsawwassen.

FINISHED TODAY Coast Ferries Ltd., which operates a service between the mainland port of Steveston and the Gulf Islands, withdrew from the run today.

Premier Bennett has authorized the ferry authority to proceed "as quickly as possible."

able" with plans to integrate the present Islands-Swartz Bay service with a service to the lower mainland.

"Plans are proceeding as quickly as possible to provide a service from Tsawwassen to the Gulf Islands and through to Swartz Bay," said a spokesman.

But officials explained none of the vessels in service at present is equipped to cross the Strait of Georgia and a new ship would have to be built before the run could be started.

CHANGE FORCED Planning for the new vessel for the Gulf Islands-Swartz Bay run had started but this has had to be changed in light of the latest requirements.

Preliminary plans for the design of the vessel are being drafted and when they are completed tenders will be called for construction of the ship.

"All this takes time," said an official. "But we're moving at the highest speed we can."

Vic Ingraham Dies

'Indestructible' Heart Stops

By ED COSGROVE
"A man," Vic Ingraham once told a writer for a mass circulation American magazine, "is the toughest thing on earth to kill."
If he has the will to live,

about the only way he can be stopped is by something as final as a bullet through the heart, the hotel operator told the Reader's Digest.
But the 65-year-old owner of the Ingraham Hotel, who survived the worst the Northwest Territories had to offer, died yesterday at Vancouver's St. Paul's Hospital of a heart attack.

His death came as a shock to business associates, who had accepted Vic Ingraham as indestructible.

He had been in hospital a week for a checkup. A friend said he believed Mr. Ingraham had suffered a minor attack prior to entering hospital.

Yesterday, just after breakfast, he suffered the fatal seizure. His widow and son Len left for Vancouver immediately.

The body will be brought back to Victoria by McCall Brothers' Funeral Chapel and arrangements for burial will be announced later.
A member of the Courtenay Elks Club and the exclusive Explorers' Club of New York, Mr. Ingraham first went north from Minneapolis to find gold.

A barrel-chested, ambitious youngster, he rushed into the uncharted wilderness of the Great Bear Lake country with a dog team.

While he made no memorable gold strikes, he did hit a bonanza in another line when he acquired a small tugboat, a partner and a newly-fledged freight line.
In the next 10 years, he had built up a tidy business.

Then on Oct. 26, 1933, while hauling a barge loaded with supplies and 11 men to Fort Radium, the tug carrying Ingraham and partner Stewart Curry and two crewmen hit rough seas.

VIC INGRAHAM
... associates mourn

While they tried to refuel, gasoline sloshed against a red-hot exhaust pipe and the tug caught fire.

The two men cut the barge loose, then Mr. Ingraham plunged into the engine room to try and rescue the two men below. Driven back by the raging flames, he was severely burned on the hands and feet.

Two in Tiny Raft

A few minutes before the tug blew up and sank, Ingraham and Curry went over the side in a rubber life raft built for one man. For two days they drifted in an icy gale before reaching shore.

In temperatures of 30 degrees below zero, they managed to build a small fire and waited three days for rescue. Realizing the only hope for survival lay with themselves, both men decided to try to find the barge.

They gambled on the possibility the barge had grounded on a point of land 50 miles up the lake and started hiking towards this point.

On the first day, Ingraham's badly-burned feet froze solid. Later, Curry went temporarily blind and had to be led by the hand.

They finally found the barge and its 11-man crew but learned all the food had been lost in the wreck. But once again providence intervened in what appeared to be a hopeless situation and one of the men killed a caribou.

Lost Both Legs

Eighteen days after the tug blew up, a search plane found them.

After a year and a half in hospital and countless operations, Mr. Ingraham lost both legs below the knee and the first joint of three fingers on each hand.

Still on crutches, he headed north to take a job as an agent for a transportation company at Great Bear Lake.

In 1937 there was a gold strike at Yellowknife. Along with the horde of gold-seekers hobbled Vic Ingraham, turning his back on a secure job to make another start as a free agent.

Setting up as a trader, he prospered.

He built Yellowknife's first hotel. As the boomtown grew, he built a bigger one, then a third. Along with the hotel business, he started a transportation company, operating a fleet of trucks and tractor trains.

He threw away his crutches and, with his artificial legs, drove one of his own rigs through 40 below zero weather. Moving west shortly after the war, he operated the hotel at Langley, then took over the 'Arbutus Hotel at Courtenay.'

The swank, 50-room Ingraham, completed 15 months ago, was his legacy to Victoria, the city of his adoption, said an associate.

Around the Island

Mail Run Pledged For Gulf Centres

GALIANO—Near-direct mail service was promised Gulf Islands residents by Capt. O. H. New, president of the Gulf Island Navigation Co., at a meeting of the shareholders yesterday.

With the removal of the lone direct link between the islands and the B.C. Mainland — the ferry Island Princess — residents have been concerned about prompt delivery of the mail.

Under the new system, mail will be carried by car via B.C. government ferry to Swartz Bay and then transferred to the ferry Motor Princess for delivery to the islands. This will take place Mondays, Thursdays and Saturdays until other arrangements can be made.

Shareholders re-elected last year's executive, added Capt. Eric Murray of Alert Bay and E. J. Riddan of Vancouver as directors.

DUNCAN—Sum of $4,773, not covered by government grants in acquiring two new buses for Cowichan school district, will be partly borne by the city. North Cowichan and the provincial government, in lieu of the unorganized territories, will be asked to pay the remainder.

Easy Time For Fish

TOFINO—Salmon and trout will have an easier time ascending Indian River thanks to Thomas Gibson Contractors Co. of Tofino.

The firm has blasted a 30-foot cut in a dam built many years ago by the defence department as a water reservoir for the former RCAF airport here.

COURTENAY—A school building bylaw will probably be placed before the voters in the spring. Trustees studying the school situation indicate more elementary schools or classrooms will be required in the next five years.

DUNCAN—Famed cellist Rohan de Saram will be unable to appear at the Victoria Symphony Orchestra concert in Cowichan High School Friday. Mendelssohn and Haydn symphonies and Dvorak's "Slavonic Dances" will be played instead.

Duncan area residents who wish to hear the cellist play the Dvorak concerto are invited, free of charge, to the Victoria concert in the Royal Theatre at 3 p.m. Sunday.

DUNCAN—The driver of a lumber truck, J. K. Fielden of Duncan, escaped injury when a chain securing the load broke and the truck overturned after plunging into a ditch on Lake Cowichan Road.

DUNCAN—The Canadian and world curling champions, the Hec Gervais rink of Alberta, will compete against a local club Dec. 5 at 2.30 p.m. in the Duncan curling rink.

Lights Eyed In Duncan

DUNCAN—Lighting will be improved in several parts of Duncan, including Trunk Road between the railroad tracks and the Trans-Canada Highway and from there to Lakes Road.

City council members, hoping to get the work done before Christmas, will tour the city Thursday night to investigate lighting in various areas where improvement is desirable.

Other News Of Island On Page 7

CAMPBELL RIVER—Royal Canadian Legion now has a double role, next president Fred Wood of the branch here told a special Remembrance Day breakfast at Legion Hall for veterans.

It must further the welfare of veterans of all wars, he said, and it must "engender all youth projects."

Sun shone on the Remembrance rite here, as it did in all other major Island centres. Service was held in the community hall, but the good weather permitted the wreath-laying ceremony to be held at the cenotaph.

LAKE COWICHAN—Unemployed logger K. S. Coulombe, 29, of Salmon Arm, was fined $10 for driving without insurance and his driver's licence was indefinitely suspended in police court.

He drove his car accidentally into the lake at a log dump one mile west of the village. The vehicle, taken from 25 feet of water was a total loss.

DUNCAN—Building permits for October, representing a total value of $1,350, are considerably lower than the $24,600 for September.

In October, 1960, total value of construction was $13,150.

CAMPBELL RIVER—Conservation officers counted 581 hunters with 113 deer, 68 bucks and 45 does and fawns, at the game checkpoint at Campbell River Bridge following the first hunting weekend of the season. They found one loaded firearm in a car and one juvenile hunting without an adult.

FULFORD—Big elk which caused considerable talk when it was seen on Salt Spring Island in September now is believed to have left during the Mount Tuam fire that month. An elk was seen recently on the Cowichan Indian reserve.

BUMPY FLIGHT: Latest issue of the complimentary TCA magazine "In Flight" urges travellers to go to Europe and see for themselves where world-famous composers, artists, writers and philosophers once lived.

And to point up the article the cover picture is a reproduction of the head of Jeremiah, one of the masterpieces of Michelangelo's art in the Sistine Chapel, Vatican City.

It wasn't a very good choice. Jeremiah is shown crouching down, his hand cupped over his mouth.

THERE OUGHTA BE A LAW: We should have known better, of course... It never fails when some avid green thumb produces a monstrous carrot or potato and comes in to claim a record. Sure enough, the telephones will be ringing all next day with gardeners claiming they've produced a bigger monster.

This time it's sweet peas. Last week we asked if anyone could match the feat of our friend A. F. Rainey on Transit Road who still had sweet peas blooming in his garden. No one replied. So DUNCAN—Newly constituted Cowichan Christmas Cheer Fund committee has Mrs. Heather Bulcock at the helm. For 11 years the group has provided food hampers and toys to needy families. This year vouchers, redeemable at local stores, will replace them. Donors are urged to send contributions as soon as possible to a special mail box No. 1938, at the local post office.

Protest Delayed

NANAIMO—City council has decided not to protest, at least for the moment, a directive from the B.C. government which says no permanent or seasonal workers may be hired for winter works projects.

COURTENAY—United Appeal has only $600 to find to reach its $25,000 target before the drive ends Nov. 20. Cumberland is within $100 of its quota, the Courtenay business section $80 and the logging industry $80. Over the top are RCAF Comox, Comox residential area, Dove Creek and Jorgenson Ventures.

DUNCAN—In a letter to Public Works Minister W. N. Chant, the city will point out the urgent need for improved library facilities here.

Correspondence from the Cowichan school board informed council of inconclusive dealings with Mr. Chant's department. The trustees were concerned about provincial indifference toward the long-promised library project.

DUNCAN—Unemployed but employable people on social assistance, including four fathers and six single men, will have an opportunity to earn some money in time for Christmas. City council has decided to put at least that many men to work if possible.

FULFORD—The monthly cribbage game will be played at the Beaver Point Community Hall Saturday.

Even Historic Jeremiah Wasn't a Stable Flyer

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

Yesterday we said Mr. Rainey could probably claim a record. The phones are still ringing. So we can now report that sweet peas are also blooming in the gardens of many people, including Mrs. Arlene Hansen, 3149 Jackson; Len Ford, 405 Kingston; P. A. Gorse, 4034 Hollydene Place; and E. T. Howe, 3901 Blenkinsop.

Mr. Howe even has green peppers and tomatoes still coming along—and enclosed some samples to prove his point. And Mr. Rainey himself says the real credit should go to that eminent gardener Jack Todd on Newport who gave him all the tips. Anyway the matter is now closed—so please stop telephoning!

LEAVE THE DRIVING TO US: A city real estate man was showing a prospective client some properties. "You work at the dockyard," said the salesman.

"Have you ever considered living in Esquimalt?"

"No, I could never do that," replied the client. The realtor asked why. "Well, I haven't taken my car to work for 12 years," confided the man. "And by the time the buses to the dockyard reach Esquimalt there's standing room only. So the only way I can get a seat is to get on the bus in town."

AROUND TOWN: Apparently quite a few of those fancy little clocks a firm gave away as a promotion stunt a few weeks ago are now in jewellers' stores—for repairs!... William Enman will close the doors of the Royal London Wax Museum Sunday evening and they'll remain shut until April 1. When it opens again for the next tourist season the museum will be spread over 50 per cent more floor space and plans are for a 25 per cent increase in exhibits... Back in town at a local radio station is Barry Wood who, since he was last here in the early 1940s, has been with the CBC and other radio stations in the East... Motel owner Bob Long took a ribbing after he went bowling the other night. The first game he scored 22, and in the second 176! That's an 800 per cent improvement.

REMEMBER WHEN? Guests at the Sylvia McLoughlin-Erik Bendrodt wedding at St. Patrick's Church the other day had a special treat. Mrs. John Gillan sang the "Pans Angelicus."

Old-timers recalled her as Eva Hart, toast of the Victoria live stage a good many years ago. She trod the boards of the old Princess Theatre and dazzled those on the other side of the footlights. Her beautiful voice rang forth in the church as full and true and rich as ever.

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE: Just in case it's bothered you, scientists report that the oily drops often seen floating on the surface of a martini are a "bicyclic terpene hydrocarbon."

Village Destroyed

Death Toll Now 160 In Mexican Cyclone

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The defence ministry said Tuesday night the death toll from cyclone Tara had soared to 160 and more casualties were feared as floods swept the Pacific coast above Acapulco.

The village of Nuxco was destroyed by torrential rains and floods, officials said. Much of a 120-mile coastal area remained blacked out and only air drops and parachutists were able to get in supplies and medicines. Helicopters were rushed to the disaster area northwest of the resort city of Acapulco. The city itself was not damaged. The storm struck suddenly over the weekend, but reports were delayed by destroyed communications. Four days later, details were still lacking. Much of the damage and many of the fatalities resulted from floods following in the wake of the storm that roared in from the Pacific. Damage was estimated at more than $1,000,000.

Cabinet's Refuge In Nanaimo

The federal and provincial governments may be prepared to fight to the last kilowatt over the Columbia River but they are agreed on one thing—survival. This $2,000,000 nuclear attack nerve-centre under construction at Nanaimo by the department of national defence will shelter top echelon of provincial government plus army's B.C. Area Command. When steel-reinforced concrete is completed in May or June the building will be completely underground. (June Leahy photo.)

Worried Reds Revamp Navy

LONDON (UPI)—Russia is urgently reorganizing its navy in the face of growing American nuclear dominance, the authoritative Jane's Fighting Ships reported Tuesday.

The new edition of the reference book was published coincident with a belief in naval circles that Russia is trying to develop a torpedo with a nuclear warhead in an effort to counter the American armada of 58 aircraft carriers.

In the event of war the carriers could loose hundreds of planes carrying nuclear weapons against Russian targets. One of the top Soviet priorities is how to deal with this threat to its lifelines.

Russia, with more submarines than the rest of the world combined, is expected in any future war to try to saturate the oceans with its under-seas craft. If it could perfect an atomic torpedo it would intensify the danger to Allied ships.

Jane's said the United States has two nuclear warheaded torpedoes designed as submarine killers—"Subroc" and "Astor." But until now there have not been any reports of Russian progress in this field.

Jane's said the major reorganization of the Russian navy is so thorough that Premier Khrushchev has had to reverse the opinion—freely offered the U.S. navy during his San Francisco visit—that the cruiser is obsolete.

CRUISERS CONVERTED
Russia is keeping all the cruisers it has built in recent years and some of them apparently are being converted into guided-missile ships. In this category of warships, as in every important one except submarines, the United States outnumbers Russia—47 cruisers to 25.

FIGURE REDUCED
The Soviet dependence on the submarine as its main weapon of sea warfare once again is the feature of the U.S. naval setup although Jane's said the "frightening figure" of 500 undersea craft under the Red flag has been reduced to about 430. The United States has 150 submarines.

Jane's doubts Russia's recent claim that it has more, faster and more heavily armed nuclear-powered submarines than the United States.

Mac Rejects Labor Move

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Macmillan Monday rejected an opposition Labor party call for a Commonwealth prime minister's conference on proposed immigration curbs by Britain.

West Can't Afford To Ignore Offer Of Olive Branch

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker last night said the West could not afford to "dismiss out of hand" any indication that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev wanted to reach a four-power agreement on Berlin.

Diefenbaker said the immediate task of Western statesmen was "to continue to explore the areas of possible four-power agreement and to make the necessary contacts with the Soviet Union."

POSITION ASSURED
The prime minister told the national conference of Canadian universities and colleges that Khrushchev emerged from the recent Communist party congress "with his internal position apparently assured."

"He may feel that he can afford to be a little more reasonable about the problem he has created over Berlin."

CANADA ACTIVE
"While the free nations have every reason to be wary of Mr. Khrushchev, at the same time they cannot afford to dismiss out of hand any indication that he recognizes the necessity and desirability of a four-power agreement on Berlin."

Macapagal Moves Ahead

MANILA (UPI)—Latest reports from the Philippines elections show Vice-President Diosdado Macapagal moving into a commanding lead over President Carlos Garcia.

Doctor Let Cat Out Of Bag

Curiosity didn't kill this cat—but it almost shocked a local doctor out of 10 years' growth.

The cat in question—a large yellow tom—was missed Monday night from the Jubilee area home of two boys suffering from the flu, following the doctor's visit.

A search was just being organized when the doctor returned—cat in hand. He had stopped at the home of another patient, opened his medical bag, and out popped the cat.

Clause 'Betrayal' Says Art Teacher

By IAN STREET

The provincial government has inserted a "good behavior" clause in its order for reinstatement of a teacher fired last June by Greater Victoria school board on grounds that he failed to adhere to the curriculum.

The cabinet, sitting as council of public instruction, decreed that the dismissal be set aside and ordered the teacher in future to "adhere to the instructions" of the superintendent of local schools.

The reinstatement decision was based on the unanimous findings of a three-member board of reference, which heard the appeal of Colquitz Junior High School industrial arts teacher Geoffrey C. D'Arcy, that the "reasons for dismissal in this instance were not sufficiently proved."

SUBJUGATION
Mr. D'Arcy said yesterday the breadth of interpretation that it was possible to attach to the rider could "negate the whole proceedings" of his appeal.

He added: "No free and responsible citizen would accept such comprehensive subjugation (as the government proposed) and for a teacher to do so would be to betray his society, his profession and his educational responsibilities."

SUGGESTION DENIED
The teacher said he objected to the rider on two main grounds.

The first was the suggestion that as a teacher, "I must follow blind any and all instructions without regard for my own convictions or the educational methods involved or ignored."

Also, Mr. D'Arcy said, it contained a suggestion which he vigorously denied, that in the past he had not fully complied with the requests of the district superintendent of schools.

"In all matters of organization and sound educational practice,"

CAUSE HELPED
Mr. D'Arcy said he was "gratified" that the council of public instruction had confirmed the favorable decision of the board of reference.

He said the general cause of maintaining a healthy educational system had been helped considerably. Spokesmen for Greater Victoria school board declined to comment on the government order until it is discussed by trustees at a public meeting Monday night.

City Fires Capable Men To Qualify for Grants

City hall has to fire experienced employees and hire inexperienced men to qualify for provincial grants towards its winter works program.

"The man we know is suitable and capable has to be fired and put on unemployment insurance, and later social assistance, while we hire someone else who is already on social assistance," Ald. Geoffrey Edgewood, chairman of city public works committee, said yesterday.

The committee asked City Manager C. C. Wyatt and engineer James Garnett to prepare a brief on the city's position. The committee will use the brief in representations to the provincial government.

Discussion centred around a circular from the B.C. government stating that provincial grants will only be paid in the case of newly-hired employees who had been receiving social welfare payments.

Previously, the city claimed and was given grants for regular employees who would normally have been dismissed in the winter.

Aid Pledged Korea

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy met Tuesday with South Korea's revolutionary leader, Gen. Chung Hee Park, and promised his nation "all possible" continued U.S. military and economic support.

Kennedy's renewal of the United States' pledge eight years ago to help defend South Korea included "the use of armed forces if there is a renewal of armed attack," a joint communique said.

1066 and All That

LONDON (CP)—While Canadians bubble with plans for their 1967 centenary celebrations, Britons are brooding about the impending 900th anniversary of the Battle of Hastings.

No one doubts the battle's importance. Despite strong challenges from dates like 1588, 1805 and 1940, the year 1066 retains its unique connection with the greatest invasion England has ever known.

Every self-respecting Englishman is perfectly aware that the creative conscience of his race was forged in the battle heat at Hastings.

But there are problems—as Hastings borough council learned recently when it announced plans to mount a joint Anglo-French mock invasion to commemorate the Norman conquest.

Although 900 years of integration makes it difficult for many people to decide whether Hastings was a tragic defeat or a glorious victory, reaction to the council's plans reveals that Anglo-Saxon attitudes are bitter still and Norman blood can boil yet.

Battle ranks began to form in the letters column of The Daily Telegraph and the first arrow—a Saxon shaft—came from the bow of Rear-Admiral G. J. Creswell.

He deplored the fact that an English defeat by a foreign "gangster" should be celebrated at all. Harold, the admiral asserted, was undoubtedly the "noblest figure" of the fray.

Retaliation came from Norman sympathizer Mary

Darby. She pointed out that "by the standards of the day the Bastard of Falaise had the strongest possible claim to the crown of England."

A Celt named O'Connor sided with the anti-Saxons by damning Harold as a murderer's son, a bigamist and a usurper who met his just reward by dying with a Norman arrow in his eye.

As the ranks began to close, an impartial bystander suddenly turned anger into confusion by announcing that William did not land at Hastings at all.

"It is indisputable that William landed at Pevensey, some 12 miles west of Hastings," wrote Trevor Norman. "Accordingly the worthy villagers of Pevensey are going ahead with plans to celebrate the landing in their own village."

At this point an historical society in a Sussex community called Battle, named after the inland village where the forces met, decided it was time to soothe the belligerents with a "band of brothers" theme.

Chairman C. T. Chevallier—a suspected Norman—said the society fully appreciates all the graces and virtues of Harold but also believes that the Normans, although cruel, "imparted organization and cohesion to the previously discordant English."

"We of Pevensey, Hastings and Battle are surely right to commemorate this great if tragic happening. For in us, as demonstrably in all Englishmen everywhere, mingles the blood of conquerors and conquered alike."
